

Annual Community Fund Campaign To Be Launched Today

Big Volunteer Group Seeks To Raise $575,000

Gigantic Appeal Will Continue Through October 31.

The 19th annual Community Fund appeal will be in full swing today following a final mobilization of the civic forces backing the big drive at an "early bird" breakfast scheduled for 8:30 o'clock this morning at the Ansley hotel.

Several hundred generals, majors, captains and privates serving in the army of some 3,500 volunteers will be on hand to hear 11th-hour instructions pertinent to the call upon the people of Fulton and DeKalb county for $575,000 needed to keep private charitable work going for another 12 months.

R. H. Rich, 1941 general chairman, and four well-known citizens who have headed previous campaigns, will all have something to say from the standpoint of successful enlisting the public's support of vital welfare work maintained by 34 outstanding human service agencies.

Former Leaders Speak.
Robert Tyre Jones Jr., Harry Sommers, W. C. Harris and Julian V. Boehm will all speak briefly from their experience as former volunteer leaders of fund appeals, which have provided more than $7,000,000 for bettering the well-being of the community since the plan for one united effort was adopted back in 1922.

A highlight on the breakfast program will be a unique demonstration of how not to solicit a fund gift. This is in the nature of a monologue by Mrs. George P. Carmichael, member of the Atlanta Theater Guild. Lively music while the gathering assemblies will be supplied by Sam Cochran, Negro pianist.

Immediately following the breakfast "Dutch treat" affair, incidentally, division leaders will go into individual huddles with their workers preparatory to buckling down to the two-week task of giving every potential donor a chance to do his or her part in discharging a responsibility shared by every citizen.

Final Lap of Drive.

The public appeal, beginning today and continuing through October 31, is actually only the home stretch of a tremendous drive by hundreds of fund supporters which began months ago. The closing period gives employees in downtown business concerns and office buildings, as well as householders in the residential district, their first official opportunity to subscribe.

It likewise brings to a climax many weeks of organization effort in approaching a long list of individual givers and in systematizing solicitation among more than 5,000 workers in some 1,200 of the largest business and industrial concerns in the Atlanta area.

The goal of $575,000 is virtually the same as in 1941, although rising costs of all necessities and burdens imposed by the national emergency make it more imperative than ever before that the agencies be adequately provided for, according to Chairman Rich.

Active support by organized labor through which the Whitehead Foundation will swell the public's total subscription by 10 per cent are hailed by appeal leaders as powerful factors working for complete success.

The people of DeKalb and DeKalb county, who conduct a miniature appeal of their own with highly productive results, will initiate their 1941 campaign of a "kickoff" dinner at the Candler hotel at 6 o'clock Monday night. Pierre Howard and a strong committee of representative citizens will lead the 50,000 men, women and children answered the Greater Atlanta appeal last year with total contributions of $500,000. NURSES AID WOUNDED PILOT—Two nurses lift a wounded airman down the steps of a convalescent home somewhere in England. The pilot was injured, according to British sources, during the evacuation of Dunkirk.

Engineer and Fireman Injured In Train Wreck at Adamsville

Locomotive and Several Freight Cars Overturn at Brownlee Road Crossing; Passenger Coaches Remain on Rails as Mishap Occurs.

Two members of the crew of the Atlanta, Birmingham & Coast Railroad train No. 2 were injured last night when the train was wrecked at the Brownlee road crossing in Adamsville.

P. C. Reppard, of Fitzgerald, engineer, suffered bruises and burns, and was taken to the Emory University hospital for treatment, while his fireman, Sam Jones, Negro, of Fitzgerald, was also burned and bruised. He was taken to Grady hospital, where physicians said his condition was critical.

The combination freight and passenger train was due in Atlanta at 7:50 o'clock. The wreck occurred a short time before 8 o'clock, witnesses said.

The locomotive and several freight cars overturned, blocking the crossing for several hours. The passenger cars, on the rear end of the train, did not leave the rails, and no passengers were injured, according to railroad officials.

Passing motorists who reached the scene a moment after the engine overturned, took the engineer and fireman to hospitals. The fireman, witnesses said, was found lying in the middle of Brownlee road, while the locomotive toppled over a few yards below the crossing.

Automobile traffic along Brownlee road was routed by Fulton county police over other roads while an A. B. & C. wrecker and a crew of railroad men worked into the night clearing the wreckage.

While railroad officials had not determined the exact cause of the wreck, opinion was expressed a defective rail caused the mishap.

Doctor Says Condition Of Cohan Satisfactory

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The condition of George M. Cohan, noted American composer, actor and producer who was given an emergency abdominal operation yesterday, was reported satisfactory today.

A bedside bulletin issued at Flower-Fifth Avenue hospital by his physician, Dr. Miguel G. Elias, said the 63-year-old entertainer "spent a fairly comfortable night and his condition is satisfactory this morning."

Slight Dip in Mercury Is Predicted for Today

The weather outlook for today is mostly cloudy with a slight dip in temperature, the weatherman said last night. A near record high for mid-October was reached yesterday when the mercury soared to 82. The low was 62. Today's extremes are expected to be 82 and 78.

Ceilings Placed On 13 Types of Cotton Goods

Two-Thirds of Primary Staple Textiles Covered by Move.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Leon Henderson, price administrator, today placed virtually all major types of cotton goods under price ceilings which will be adjusted automatically to the price of "spot" raw cotton.

The schedule, effective tomorrow, covers 13 leading types of cloth and marks extension of price ceilings to approximately two-thirds of all primary cotton textiles. Revised schedules for combed yarns and combed-yarn fine goods are in preparation, Henderson said.

Carded-yarn goods have been divided into four groups for purposes of the new schedule—print-cloth, yarn, sheeting, yarn, denims and colored-yarn cloths.

As applied to print-cloth and sheeting yarn, the formula provides for adjustment, downward or upward of one-half cent a pound in the price of goods for every change of 43.7 points in the price of raw "spot" cotton.

The yardstick is based on the closing price of 10 "spot" markets, and any revision in prices will take effect on the day after such a 43.7-point change. Prices thus established continue in effect until the day after another 43.7 fluctuation.

Colorful Flag-Swinging Clinic To Be Held by Baton Expert

Constitution To Sponsor New Feature for Musical Festival.

By FRANK DRAKE.

A colorful new feature for The Constitution's fourth annual Greater Atlanta Music Festival great spring will be started here this week when approximately 100 Atlanta and Fulton county school girls take their first lesson in flag swinging.

Mrs. Virginia Page Nutt, foremost teacher of baton twirling and flag swinging in the United States, is being brought from Chicago to Atlanta by The Constitution to inaugurate the first flag-swinging mass group ever organized in this state, and this group will stage its first big performance at Grant field when the gigantic festival is staged early next May.

Classes in flag swinging and advanced baton twirling will be conducted by Mrs. Nutt Friday at

Troops Rushed From Siberia To Red Capital

State of Siege Ordered as Nazis Pierce Moscow Defenses.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Large numbers of Siberian and Mongolian troops are being rushed westward to reinforce the Red army defending embattled Moscow, and some of these fresh fighters already are taking their places in the Mozhaik sector 57 miles west of the capital, the Soviet radio stated yesterday.

The Germans announced a break through on the Moscow front last night and the Russian midnight communique acknowledged fighting at Mozhaik and at Maloyaroslavets, 65 miles southwest. It said, however, that fierce attacks by German troops were beaten off.

Other Points Pierced.
The German high command meanwhile announced the capture of Taganrog on the Black sea by the S S troops bearing the brunt of a drive on Rostov, gateway to the Caucasian oil fields.

German front dispatches indicated, without saying so specifically, that the German wedge was driven into the outer ring of defenses about Moscow itself.

German reports also reported piercing of the Soviet defenses at several other points and said 18 Soviet tanks were destroyed and two groups of Russian troops wiped out in fighting in which 7,000 prisoners were taken.

Joseph Stalin issued a decree proclaiming a state of siege in Moscow.

The decree said the measure was taken "to assure the defense of Moscow and the strengthening of the rear ranks of forces defending Moscow as well as to halt the underground activities of spies, diversionists and other agents of the German fascists."

30 Miles From Rostov.
Capture of Taganrog, on the Sea of Azov, put the Germans within 30 miles of Rostov, gateway to the Caucasian oil fields.

The town was said to have been taken by picked Elite Guard troops after a house-to-house fight with the Russians, whose stubborn defense of the coastal Ukraine had left a bloody trail reaching back to Odessa.

North of this area, German planes were reported to have destroyed ammunition stores and artillery emplacements in the region about Kharkov, the heart of the Donets industrial basin.

Afghanistan Ousts All Nationals Of Axis as Britain Scores Coup

Final Gap Filled in 2,000-Mile Political and Military Front Across Southwestern Asia as King Orders Expulsion of Germans and Italians.

PESHAWAR, Northwest Frontier Province, India, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The Afghanistan radio at Kabul, the capital, announced today the expulsion of German and Italian nationals from that rough and primitive country, a natural gateway between German-invaded Russia and India and only gap in the 2,000-mile political and military front the British are building across southwestern Asia.

The broadcast, as heard here, said the government of King Mohammed Zahir Shah of Afghanistan had accepted the offer of the British government to give safe conduct to the Germans and Italians by way of India, or Iraq and Turkey, to their respective countries.

Authoritative sources in London today said the British had made friendly representations to the government of Afghanistan concerning German, Italian and other Axis nationals whose presence in the country was termed a menace both to the British and the Afghans, and that it was understood the Russians had made a similar representation.

These sources declined to comment on German reports that the discussions were a prelude to Allied occupation of the country along the lines pursued in Iran.

The British obviously were interested in strengthening and repairing their political fences, if not also their military defense lines, across southwestern Asia from Syria and Turkey on the Mediterranean to India.

By a military occupation of Afghanistan, coupled with the recent successive occupations of Syria, Iraq and Iran, the British would have established a front of about 2,000 miles to oppose the Germans in event of a complete Russian collapse resulting in a "Russian Quisling" or "Russian Vichy" regime.

Bainbridge Man Reported Lost In Sub Attack

Navy Announcement Definitely Blames German U-Boat.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—The torpedoing of the United States destroyer Kearny resulted in the death of 11 men and injuries to 10 others, the Navy disclosed tonight in an announcement which laid the attack to "a submarine, undoubtedly German."

This information, supplementing with meager but significant details the initial announcement of the engagement which occurred 350 miles southwest of Iceland Friday, became available after the crippled destroyer limped into port. What haven the vessel reached was not disclosed.

"Next of Kin . . . Notified."
Thus, for the first time since the European war started, the Navy Department was constrained to issue a bulletin concluding with such words as "the next of kin of the missing . . . have been notified."

It was the first time, too, that the Navy had so directly placed the responsibility for an attack at sea upon Germany. When the destroyer Greer was attacked by a submarine off Iceland—a foray in which it went unscathed and dropped depth charges at its antagonist—the Navy made no direct charge that the submarine was German, although this fact later was established by comment from Berlin charging that the Greer had been the aggressor.

The Kearny, a $5,000,000, 1,630-ton vessel, was on patrol duty off Iceland when she was torpedoed. The Navy's initial announcement said that "no casualties to personnel were indicated."

Position Protected.
It was assumed that Lieutenant Commander A. L. Danis, the Kearny's commanding officer, sent only the barest report of the attack to his superiors at the time, however, fearing to betray his position by more extensive use of the radio.

When the Kearny made port the additional details were forthcoming. This supplementary report to the Navy apparently contained details which warranted officials here in ascribing the attack to a submarine—the nature of the attacker had not been clarified in the original announcement—and describing it as "undoubtedly German."

Whether this characterization was based on specific details received from Danis or on the supposition that any hostile submarine in Icelandic waters would be German as a matter of course was not made clear. One supposition, however, was that officers of the Kearny might have obtained a glimpse of the sub.

Two of the injured seamen were

De Valera Warns Eire of Dangers

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The British radio said tonight that Irish Prime Minister Eamon De Valera, speaking of "the high probability of Eire being involved in the war," warned his people today they did not realize the danger threatening them.

The British broadcast said De Valera appealed for recruits, explaining that the regular army had not yet reached full war footing.

"He said," it added, "that with the prospect of actual conflict, in which they would be fighting desperately for everything dear to them, there should be no complacency."

Cash Payments In Defense Program Pass 10 Billion

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Cash payments for the defense program have passed the $10,000,000,000 mark, 15½ months after they started.

The milestone, however, was scarcely noticed, perhaps because the program is developing so fast that the next $10,000,000,000 is due to be paid out in nine months and new plans are being made to spend that much about every two months.

Although legislative action on the program began in May, 1940, the cash outlay on the present program began about July 1, 1940, the beginning date of the fiscal year, appropriations, contract authorizations and other commitments up to now total about $58,000,000,000 since July 1, 1940, through October 15 of this year, the Treasury has disbursed $10,185,487,712.

In the light of talk about a "victory program" of $50,000,000,000 a year, the first $10,000,000,000 spent in the last 15½ months may be dwarfed.

But it may be remembered longer than chunks of money spent in the future. The first $10,000,000,000 sent the draftees to the training camps. It built hundreds of new factories for airplanes, guns, powder and tanks. It built shipways, paid for prosaic but vital surveys, in general paved the way for any pace the armament program ever sets.

The first lend-lease eggs went to England, the first asphalt smoothed the vital Burma Road to China, the first American Ma-

U. S. To Avenge Kearny Attack, Connally Says

Feeling Against Germany Reaches New Peak in Capital.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(INS)—Feeling against Germany rose to a high pitch in the capital tonight as the Navy Department revealed that 11 seamen were lost and believed killed in the torpedoing of the United States destroyer Kearny and calls for vengeance and outright repeal of the neutrality act were sounded by administration leaders.

Chairman Tom Connally, Democrat, Texas, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, declared "we shall avenge the attack on the Kearny" and asserted:

"We are going to repeal the law against arming American merchant ships and against our ships sailing wherever they have a right to go under international law."

Connally made the statement immediately upon learning that 11 men were missing and 10 were injured in the first fatal encounter between an American warship and a hostile submarine.

Fiat Declaration. It was the first fiat declaration an administration leader had made for removal of both the arms and combat zones ban from the neutrality act and it came on the eve of the meeting of the Foreign Relations Committee to consider the bill passed last Friday by the house authorizing guns aboard merchant ships.

"The lawless and murderous submarines shall not ply their foul dastardly assassinations in our defensive waters," Connally asserted. "We shall sink them on sight. America is going to be America."

Connally's committee would first consider the house bill and then would take up the question of striking combat zones from the neutrality act to permit American ships to enter any waters necessary in the fight against Axis powers.

Withholds Comment. Senator Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, withheld comment on the Kearny disaster, but the doughty veteran, Senator Glass, Democrat, Va., said, "I'm in favor of repealing the damn neutrality act lock, stock and barrel."

Representative Luther A. Johnson, Democrat, Texas, ranking member on the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said, "Need for revision of the neutrality law is more apparent now than ever and the Kearny attack will have the effect of intensifying and making more realistic to the American people the danger to our nation."

Eleven Missing From Kearny, Victim of Sub

"The man seriously injured is: "Leonard Frontakowski, chief boatswain's mate, 370 Hamilton avenue, Norfolk, Va.

"The men seriously and critically injured have been transferred to the hospital.

"The next of kin of the missing and the two critically and seriously injured have been notified by the Navy Department."

PYLE JOINED NAVY FIVE MONTHS AGO BAINBRIDGE, Ga., Oct. 19.—(P)—The parents of Dwight Floyd Pyle, second class seaman, listed among those missing after the torpedo attack on the U. S. S. Kearny, said he enlisted at Albany, Ga., five months ago.

Before enlisting he made his home with his father, A. Pyle, bowling alley operator. His step-mother also survives. He was a graduate of Jakin (Ga.) High school, class of '41. He has three sisters and a brother.

Pyle said tonight he had as yet nothing from the Navy regarding his son.

Argentina Urged To Drop Neutrality

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Oct. 19.—(P)—Nicolas Repetto, Socialist presidential candidate in 1937, today urged Argentina to abandon her policy of strict neutrality and to "join with the nations which fight for the defeat of Germany."

The administration has been weak, Repetto said, in its attitude toward the virtual demand of the chamber of deputies for an ouster of the German ambassador, Baron Edmund von Thiermann, on grounds of activities hostile to Argentina.

Repetto said that Argentina should not wait for Berlin to act, but, "exercising an essential right, should provoke the departure of an unwanted diplomat."

Argentina's best interests, he said, would be served by a policy "decidedly inclined to the Anglo-American side."

Future trade depends on the "liberation" of countries now occupied by Germany, Repetto said, adding that it was a vain hope to expect the United States to be able always to consume all of Argentina's export.

Drive To Raise $575,000 Fund Begins Today

The 34 independent agencies sharing the fund, more than 62,000 people of every age and condition received direct help unobtainable from any other source.

"The Community Fund is simply the people's own method of doing their part of the whole gigantic human welfare job which costs us millions of dollars annually," said Mr. Rich yesterday. "The $575,000 that the public is asked to give may seem relatively small, but it is the leaven in the loaf and our principal hope of ever reducing hardships and costs that direct relief means."

"The finest citizenship in Atlanta is represented by our splendid corps of fund-raisers and the public-spirited men and women who administer the money through our agencies. I am entirely confident that their fellow townsmen will recognize their unselfish and indispensable service by responding to this appeal with the higher level of giving necessary for meeting acutely urgent needs."

Noted Explorer To Show Film on African War

By EUGENIA BRIDGES HARTY.

Count Byron de Prorok, world-famous explorer and archeologist, spent the weekend in Atlanta, prior to his lecture this morning for the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs of which his hostess, Mildred Seydell, is president.

Accompanying her husband on his lecture tour, of which Atlanta is the first of 100 cities scheduled, is the charming countess, whose mother is Swiss and whose father, Captain Kempster, was killed in action with the British forces in World War I. The count is Polish, but was born in Mexico.

At 44 the count already has a column or so to his credit in "Who's Who." And he, like his parents, continues through his amazing discoveries during 18 expeditions in Africa, Ethiopia and Arabia—and now in Florida—to reconstruct man's early struggles.

Films Made by Selassie.

He can prove they are similar to what is going on around us today. Illustrating his lecture today with moving pictures, fresh from the southern battlefronts and sent to him by his friend, Haile Selassie, the count will show the modern mechanized war and simultaneously these same places as they might have been under siege 3,000 years ago. These late movies, received only last week by the count from the United States customs, will have their premiere showing here.

His lecture, entitled "The African Drama," will no doubt evidence the sincere conviction he expressed yesterday—that "the war against Hitler eventually will be won in the south."

Says Moslems Will Revolt.

"They will rise up in revolt, these Mohammedans, and it is in fact now already a holy war to them—a crusade against Hitler," he said. For the famous historian believes that Mussolini's stupidity in persecuting the priests, desecrating temples and holy symbols, has lost the dream of a German empire, including Africa.

"Haile Selassie, the mystic, prophesied his own return to his throne to the exact day—May 5. That was the most amazing coincidence I have ever seen," exclaimed the mystic's friend, who heard him make this prophecy in London and who has seen it come to pass."

Dies Lists 1,124 Federal Workers as 'Subversive'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Chairman Dies, Democracy, Texas, of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, sent to Attorney General Biddle today a list of 1,124 federal employees which he said disclosed "a new influx of subversive elements into official Washington."

He made public his letter of transmittal to Biddle, but did not make public the names.

Dies recalled that two years ago the committee issued a list of 563 federal employees who were "members of the American League for Peace and Democracy—one of the front organizations of the Communist party."

The Army and Navy in Georgia

Thousands of Georgians who have read about bomb-scarred London, Berlin, Moscow and other European cities will get a vivid, first-hand idea of what an air raid means this week.

Army bombers will roar in from the coast to attack eastern and central points that will direct the operations of the defending pursuit planes.

SEEKS ROCKEFELLER SEEMS BENNING COMMISSION.

Sergeant Winthrop Rockefeller, of the First Division, Fort Devens, Mass., is among 192 enlisted men seeking a commission at the Infantry Training school at Fort Benning.

He registered with other candidates from the First Corps Area, in the fourth class of the infantry officers' candidate course. Successful completion of the rigorous three-month training period will result in commissions as second lieutenants.

NIGHT FLIGHTS CANCELLED OVER MANEUVER AREA

At the Army's request, night flights by commercial air lines over the Carolina maneuver area will be suspended until the exercises have been completed, officials of Eastern Air Lines said yesterday.

Travel between Atlanta, Richmond and Washington will continue over an alternate route—Atlanta to Knoxville, Bristol, Roanoke, Lynchburg, Richmond, Washington.

A similar restriction was requested during the Louisiana maneuvers to reduce accident hazards, created by the concentration of hundreds of planes within a comparatively small area.

RETIRE—After 44 years of soldiering, Colonel Ralph M. Mitchell, commanding officer of the Fourth Coast Artillery district, will take leave of absence December 1, preparatory to retiring.

central sections of the state in mock combat intended, in part, to test civilian morale and defenses. Speedy pursuit planes will try to drive the "hostile" craft away before they can loose their imaginary bombs.

Colonel Richard C. Job, executive director of the state's Civilian Defense Council, yesterday described preparations that have been made in Augusta and said similar arrangements had been perfected for Savannah. In Macon and other cities in the maneuver area somewhat less elaborate precautions have been taken.

Thirty-one air raid shelters, including 10 for Negroes, have been established in Augusta. Emergency rescue, bomb removal, medical, fire and police units will function as well as air raid wardens. Altogether, more than 3,000 civilians have been enrolled in the city to handle emergency duties. Sirens and factory whistles will sound the alarm when bombers approach.

The air maneuvers will start today and continue until the end of the week. Job said organization of virtually all the observation posts in the maneuver area had been completed. From these civilian spotters will watch for bombers and relay the information.

Flag - Swinging Clinic Will Be Held by Expert

Music Festival last spring at Grant field, which was attended by more than 35,000 people, The Constitution is sponsoring the first flag-swinging school in the south-east to provide new thrills and new color for the 1942 festival.

Thousands of persons in this section of the country never have seen a flag-swinging performance—except maybe in the movies—but they have a brand-new experience coming when they see the mass of "ari-colored flags whirling and twirling in rhythm under the floodlights.

Mrs. Nutt is bringing 100 flags of every color under the sun with her, and each of the students will learn a routine which will be the basis of the big event next spring.

Others Will Learn.

The girls who study under Mrs. Nutt Friday will, during the year, teach other girls how to swing the fluttering flags gracefully and in time, and when The Constitution's festival comes around, several hundred performers will take part.

Mr. and Mrs. Nutt are expected to arrive in Atlanta Wednesday night, and Thursday they will visit the various schools of the city and county, consulting with band directors about individual problems. Friday they will give advice and instructions at the district music clinic at G. M. A.

Rev. T. N. Wise Promoted to Florida Church

Methodist Pastor and Bride To Leave Holbrook Charge.

By DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.

Happy promotion comes to the Rev. Tillman Newton Wise and his bride, of the North Georgia Conference Holbrook charge, according to announcement made yesterday by Dr. E. G. Mackay, district superintendent of the East Atlanta district, at the close of the quarterly conference session. The Rev. Mr. Wise and his bride are to transfer to the Florida Methodist Conference and will live at West Palm Beach, where he has been appointed as assistant pastor of the First Methodist church.

The Rev. Mr. Wise, reared at Calhoun, where early in life he manifested a deep interest in religious work, indicated by his gathering of his childhood friends in a Sunday school of their own, is a member of the first-year class in the conference, and has been on but one year. Such signal success has attended his first year's work that he now receives promotion in position and salary.

Among his numerous activities this year may be noted the fact that he got married, taking as the partner in his parsonage Miss Fannie Louisa Mozeley, of Douglasville. During the year he promoted two new church buildings, at Union Hill and Birmingham, and a Scout hut at Orange church. Mrs. Wise was reared at Douglasville, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Mozeley. She also is active in church work. Both of them are former students of Young Harris College, while the Rev. Mr. Wise also went to Georgia and Emory.

Community Fund Launching on Air

Launching of the 1941 Community Fund appeal for $575,000 will be announced at 1:45 o'clock this afternoon on a simultaneous broadcast by radio stations WAGA, WGST and WATL. R. G. Rich, general chairman; G. E. Selden, chairman of the board of trustees; Mrs. Howard See, co-chairman of the women's division, and Miss Ira Jarrell, representing the Atlanta Federation of Trades, will be presented by Edgar A. Neely Jr., head of the campaign speakers' bureau.

WINS PROMOTION—The Rev. Tillman Newton Wise and bride, of the Holbrook Methodist circuit. Announcement of their transfer to the Florida Conference was made yesterday by Dr. E. G. Mackay, district superintendent. They will be stationed at West Palm Beach, where the Rev. Mr. Wise has been named assistant pastor.

Hearings Reopen Today

On Price Control Bill

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(AP)—House Banking Committee members, apparently no nearer agreement on price control legislation than when they began hearings 10 weeks ago, will meet tomorrow to see if they can agree on a time to end hearings.

Alabama, said he hoped work on the legislation could be completed within two weeks, but added, "I don't know what the committee will do, and I don't think anybody knows."

The chairman said that tomorrow's meeting would determine a list of concluding witnesses which he said would include Secretary of Agriculture Wickard Tuesday and Federal Loan Administrator Jesse Jones.

Mrs. Edwards, Teacher, Dies At the Age of 31

Acworth Science Instructor Succumbs Suddenly in Hospital.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. ACWORTH, Ga., Oct. 19.—Mrs. W. L. Edwards, 31, a teacher of science in the school here, died unexpectedly after a brief illness at the Steiner clinic, Atlanta, last night.

She made her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Awtry Sr. Her mother, Mrs. Awtry, is the well known president of the North Georgia Methodist Conference Woman's Society of Christian Service.

Funeral services will be held at the Methodist church here at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. The officiating minister will be the Rev. H. C. Holland, of Athens, assisted by Dr. Nat Long, of the Glenn Memorial church, Atlanta, and Dr. Wallace Rogers, presiding elder of the North Atlanta District of the Methodist church.

Mrs. Edwards is survived by her husband, a two-year-old daughter, Jean Gray, her parents, and one brother, L. M. Awtry Jr., of Marietta. Interment will be in the Liberty Hill cemetery.

Reeds growing along the coast of North China are being used by Japanese to manufacture paper.

At the foot of the candle it is DARK!

SO said the Persians, centuries ago. No man can yet foresee exactly what lies ahead as his own candle of life burns lower.

But, by joining forces with many others, a light goes on burning for those you would protect—even if your own light sputters and fails.

THIS SIMPLE ANALOGY is almost the whole story of life insurance—the way it serves in our modern world to aid men to safeguard themselves and their families from risks that the dark of tomorrow hides. And the prudence of life insurance managements, the protection of wise laws, the certainties of arithmetic, the service of helpful agents—all these make the future of millions of us brighter, more secure.

Aluminum—After the War

Because of demands of the defense construction program, particularly the airplane industry, production of aluminum is today being rapidly accelerated. New plants are being erected and new sources of power devised for the making of this essential metal.

Both in Canada and the United States the aluminum output, before the war emergency is over, will be double or treble what it was a few months ago. In Canada alone, in the northwest Ontario region, it is claimed that aluminum output will soon supply 25 per cent of the needs of both that country and this.

After the war emergency is over, the problem will arise as to the uses to which the vastly increased supplies of aluminum will be put.

Most of the light metal now goes into the making of airplanes, but there is no doubt that the plane industry will drop to but one-third, perhaps one-fourth, of its present output when world peace returns.

It is, therefore, interesting to speculate upon developments which will probably occur in the railroad industry, in the manufacture of automobiles, etc.

Henry Ford is reported to have spoken, once upon a time, disparagingly of locomotive and, rolling stock design, because of what he alleged was unnecessary weight. It was, perhaps, with this criticism in mind that designers of the new streamlined locomotives at first used large quantities of aluminum, on the theory that less weight would result in quicker and smoother starting of the modern trains.

Later, when the price of aluminum was considered too high, they built streamlined locomotives of stainless steel.

However, when, after the war, the aluminum market is comparatively glutted, the price will inevitably come down and it is quite possible the dreams of lightweight, streamlined trains will then be realized in full.

Likewise it is probable the automobile of the future will use far more aluminum in construction than it has in the past, resulting in a strong, yet lightweight machine, adapted to modern, scientifically engineered highways.

There will be many changes in the economic and industrial picture of America when postwar adjustments are complete. And not the least of these will be far more extensive uses of aluminum.

A famed novelist tells the would-be author that a yearning to write is not enough. As once remarked by George Ade, in the moral of a fable in slang, "many are called, but few get up."

In the lively Mediterranean, the Italians report hitting the Ark Royal by special permission of Goebbels, holder of the original copyright on the story.

75 Years of Service

The Marietta Journal last week published a special edition, celebrating the 75th anniversary of the paper's founding. It was an edition of high credit in itself, as well as marking a milestone in a career of service to Marietta and Cobb county which is equalled by but few papers in Georgia and the south.

Only by unselfish service to its community can any newspaper survive for three-fourths of a century. Even though all Cobb countians know the important place this paper has taken in the life and progress of their county, it is still gratifying to realize that time has given its accolade to such a paper.

The paper has been edited, through the years, by men who have left honorable mark upon their county, state and nation. It was founded in 1866 by Robert M. Goodman. From 1875 to 1909 the editors were J. A. Massey and W. S. N. Neal; from 1909 to 1914 Josiah Carter was editor; from 1917 to 1920 David Comfort directed the paper. William Lloyd Harris has been editor and publisher since 1920. It is today a daily, except Saturday and Sunday.

The Constitution is proud to be able to offer congratulations to a neighbor newspaper which was born about the same time it first saw the light of day. And to extend a very sincere hope that for many, many years to come The Marietta Journal may continue to serve its community and to lead in all things for the betterment of Cobb county.

One of the problems confronting early civilization, says a lecturer, was what to use for money. If he hears of anything, Morgenthau would appreciate a call.

Save and Plan

Private citizens have ideal opportunity to play their part in the maintenance of the post-war economy. Private pending during the war period will be curtailed, building a backlog of buying which should play a major part in the transition from armament making to manufacturing for the needs of peace. Private home construction will be sharply curtailed, while at the same time many technological advances in construction, materials and procedures will be developed for public use.

This opens up for the public an opportunity for full participation in the task of getting the wheels turning in a peace world. Taxes should not be so severe saving will be impossible. Curtailed opportunity for spending will make saving more desirable, particularly when definite goals are in view.

So that now is the time to plan for the new home, for the new furniture, for the new stoves and refrigerators and furnaces and stokers and implements of all kinds which will be scarce, or impossible to purchase, in the war years.

There is fascination in planning homes and, if it can be combined with a definite financial plan for the construction of that "dream house," then a dual source of anticipation and pleasure is afforded the average citizen.

It would not be amiss if private financial agencies co-operated in the promulgation of such plans, bringing to the public a consciousness of the long-range planning which will be necessary if the economy of the country is to be sustained in the post-war crisis.

No factor in the national economy can be overlooked in preparing for the crucial months and possible years of the switch-over from war to peace economies. Production is nearing a point 50 per cent greater than that of 1929. Before the war is done, it is probable this production factor will be 100 per cent greater.

This means never again can the United States return to an economy of scarcity. Rather, should it return to such an economy, chaos and probably revolution will follow. An economy of abundance, on the other hand, requires a great acceleration in spending, the maintenance of full employment at reasonable wage levels and prices scaled to attract mass buying rather than selective buying.

Planning for buying and building in the post-war world can be the contribution of the average citizen, a planning he should work out in conjunction with savings institutions. This spending, although individually small, will have a cumulative effect reaching into every section of the country. It will affect governmental employment as well as private employment and a sufficient volume will bring the keel to an even balance as nothing else can.

We believe it can be said that in our time the enthusiasm of the governing class for public economy has never got out of control.

Group Medical Care

That complete medical service, including preventive as well as curative services, can be rendered to workers and their families at an average annual cost of $21 per person, is the conclusion reached by Dr. Franz Goldmann, associate clinical professor of public health at the Yale University School of Medicine. Dr. Goldmann's findings are published in the autumn issue of "Medical Care" published by the Committee on Research in Medical Economics.

Dr. Goldmann has concluded a survey of health plans operated by four large industries, two in the east and two in the south. These plans have been functioning from 17 to 28 years and cover employee groups varying in number from 5,000 to 100,000. These numbers include dependents as well as actual workers. That the experience of these four corporations is of high value in the reduction of loss of working time through nonindustrial illness is self-evident, especially at this time, when highest efficiency of workers is essential for the defense emergency program.

The plans provide, says Dr. Goldmann, well-rounded medical care for the entire family. Services include those of general practitioners, surgeons and other specialists, home nursing, hospital care, care at maternity, periodic health examinations and other preventive measures, therapy, X-ray, laboratory and, in most cases, medicines.

The low cost of the services is attributed to four factors: Use of preventive medicine, even spread of risks over large groups, economies resulting from group practice and the integration of preventive and curative services.

That these four cases of group medical care provide data which should be studied by medical men and economists alike is self-evident. The single fact that preventive medicine is included in the services rendered is of vital importance. Greater stress upon this branch of the doctors' art would undoubtedly result in a healthier nation and a far lower national bill for curative medicine, hospitalization, etc.

In any event, the experiment is of deep interest and may point the way to widespread revision of medical practice in the entire country.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

GRAVITY OF JAP SITUATION WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—High government officials view new war threats in the Pacific as well demonstrated by President Roosevelt's reaction to the first news of the fall of the Konyoe cabinet in Japan.

So important was the news regarded by Secretary Hull that he walked across the narrow street separating the State Department from the White House and personally delivered it to the President. Making no secret of his own concern over the information, Mr. Roosevelt abruptly called off a scheduled cabinet meeting and conferred instead with his military advisers—Secretary of War Stimson, Secretary of the Navy Knox, Army Chief of Staff General Marshall, Chief of Naval Operations Admiral Stark, and Lease-Lend Administrator Harry Hopkins. Mr. Hull also remained for the "war cabinet" conference, which lasted almost two hours.

Only events of the highest potential importance are capable of disturbing normal White House routine to this extent. No comment of any description was forthcoming from any of the officials taking part in the conference, but the circumstances of it all were sufficient to confirm the general undertone of feeling that has appeared since that we may be nearer war with Japan now than ever before.

CHOSEN AGGRESSION All informed observers agree that the substitution of a new militaristic government at Tokyo for the comparatively moderate cabinet of Prince Konyoe, who has been conducting negotiations looking to better relations with the United States, means that Japan has made its choice on the side of aggression.

The new cabinet coming into power is looked upon here as wholly controlled by military extremists—elements in Japan who are obsessed with the idea that the little island nation is destined to carve a huge empire for itself out of the Pacific.

The Japanese situation has been viewed as more or less critical ever since the German invasion of Russia. Even before that, relations between the Washington and Tokyo governments were by no means the best because of outspoken American sympathies with the Chinese, who have been resisting a four-year war forced on them by the same militaristic elements. If the Japs should make a move against the Dutch East Indies and the British in the Pacific as a means of diverting our attention from Europe.

It was no less desirable from Hitler's standpoint to have the British involved in a war in the Pacific also, since it would necessitate more far-flung operations of the British fleet.

SOURCE OF MATERIALS Aside from our own set policy of rendering every aid to the British, and now the Russians, our chief interest in the Pacific lies in the important source it provides for strategic materials like rubber and tin needed for national defense. If the Japs should make a successful move against the Dutch East Indies and the British in the Pacific, our source of these materials would be cut off. It is doubtful whether we have more than a year's supply on hand at present.

Hitler's prodding of the Nipponese has brought us to the verge of several crises in the past, but the tension seemed to have definitely relaxed after the spectacular meeting on the high seas in midsummer of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill. The promise of British-American collaboration in the Pacific announced by Mr. Churchill caused Tokyo to draw in its horns.

FDR KEPT SILENT Since then negotiations have been in progress between the United States and Japanese governments with a view to removing any causes for war in the Pacific. They proceeded with orderly restraint so long as it appeared that the Russians would be able to hold out against the Germans. Mr. Roosevelt, in nursing the tedious situation, carefully refrained from making any reference to the Japanese in his several world-wide broadcasts denouncing the other two Axis partners by name.

At the while the negotiations were in progress, however, our State Department heads were conscious of an undercurrent movement in Japan to oust the moderate Konyoe government and replace it with military elements willing to follow Hitler to the end. This movement was evidently not to be suppressed once the tide definitely turned in favor of the Nazis in Russia. Prince Konyoe was only able to keep it in check by pointing out the names of a naval officer in the United States and Britain while the Russian army remained intact at Japan's back door.

It broke loose completely when it became apparent that Hitler was on his way to knocking out European Russia. The resignation of the Konyoe cabinet followed.

SHOOTING THREATS What the next move of the war-minded new Japanese government will be cannot be foretold, of course. It may be in the direction of Singapore, or the Dutch East Indies, or it may follow the example of Italy by thrusting a dagger into the back of Russia while the battle against Hitler is at its height.

Any one of the three would jeopardize our interests severely. A move against Russia would block the main Siberian route through which we are sending supplies to the Soviets. Any one of them might involve us in immediate shooting in the Pacific.

That is why President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull were quick to summon a meeting of the "war cabinet" why the news of the fall of the Konyoe cabinet was regarded with such importance, and why it was acted upon so promptly at the White House.

Words Most

Inspired by something written here some days ago, Joe Loewinson, the old standby, furnishes a list of 20 words selected, some of which are the most beautiful in the language. The selection was made by vote, through some magazine, newspaper or other.

Here are the 20:
Melody, splendor, adoration, eloquence, virtue, innocence, modesty, faith, joy, honor, nobility, sympathy, heaven, love, divine, hope, harmony, happiness, purity and liberty.

To which Joe adds nine others, which are special favorites of his own:
Caress, dawn, adolescence, twilight, enchantment, embrace, loneliness, grace and endearment.

And I hasten to comment on the choices, both the 20 picked by popular vote and the nine suggested by Joe, that most of them don't comply with my idea of a beautiful word at all.

When I speak of a beautiful word, I have no reference whatever to its meaning. I am speaking of word beautiful solely because of the arrangement of sounds necessary to speak it, the music of the vowels and consonants that symbolize the vocalization needed to pronounce it. That has nothing to do with the meaning of the word.

And we have only to glance at the lists above to know that most of the voters chose their words by the beauty of their meaning, instead of the beauty of their sound.

For instance, supreme in beauty as are their meanings, it is difficult to find two words that sound worse than "love" and "liberty."

Complying

With Request.

Letter from the U. S. Navy Recruiting Bureau asks the publication of "as many as possible" of the "enclosed editorial space fillers." Inasmuch as I would never insult the editorial columns by hinting they require "space fillers," but confessing at the same time that the Bureau does need them, frequently, I'll slip them in here and hope the Recruiting Bureau is pleased.

Men of 17 to 50: Defend your home and your liberty! Enlist today in the U. S. Navy, or the U. S. Naval Reserve.

The U. S. Navy offers its men unlimited trade training opportunities to better qualify themselves for later civilian life. Inquire today how you can enlist in the U. S. Navy or the U. S. Naval Reserve.

Reserve and become eligible for $1,500 worth of trade training free.

The U. S. Navy needs men to man the ships, to fly the planes, that now make America's two-ocean fleet the mightiest naval force in the world.

Skilled mechanics and trained technicians: The U. S. Navy Reserve will accept men from 17 to 50 for immediate enlistment at ratings and pay grades comparable to their civilian standing.

Men, the Navy's life for you! A great opportunity to serve your country, good pay, excellent living conditions, unlimited opportunities for advancement.

There's a Navy Recruiting Station or Sub-station in the Post Office or Federal Office building in every principal city and population center of the country.

Wanted,

Gunners.

Incidentally, I'll bet the Navy has a problem on its hands now that the Congress has passed the way for putting guns on merchant ships. For it will be up to the Navy to furnish the guns and, I suspect, the gun crews. It takes months to make a naval gunner out of a landlubber, or out of a merchant marine deck hand, for that matter.

So I'd not be surprised to see a hot campaign for recruits for the Navy to learn to shoot antiaircraft and antismarine guns, in the near future.

It is not easy, you should remember, to fire a 3-inch gun accurately from the deck of a ship rolling and pitching in mid-ocean swell. And a submarine telescope is a small target.

So, if you think you can aim straight and if you'd like to take a hot shot or two at the Nazi pirates, why hurry round to your nearest Navy recruiting station and they'll undoubtedly welcome you with open arms—at least, after you've passed the physical tests.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

The opinions expressed by Mr. Pegler in this column are his own and do not necessarily represent the opinion of The Atlanta Constitution.

Too Long NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Well, it certainly is a good thing I wasn't serious about the proposition of running for the United States senate in New York for the sole purpose of knocking Bob Wagner into the creek on the issue of the labor act.

In the first place, he doesn't go to bat again until 1945, by which time, if something drastic hasn't been done, the unions and the government will have swallowed each other and we will live under an arrangement something like Hitler's with a Sturm, or squad, of union goons in each neighborhood and little town to enforce discipline informally on the citizens with government backing.

You may remember that I just happened to ask in an offhand way what you have to do to run for the senate.

Well, I found out. A lawyer told me, free. His name is Finkel, and he has an office in Brooklyn.

Has Two

Qualifications

First, he says, I have to be over 30, which is already attended to, although on that point his advice is worth just what he asks for it, because Rush Holt got elected from West Virginia when he was under age. Then, he says, I have to be a citizen of New York and that has been taken care of, although my post office address is New Canaan, Conn., because that is the nearest to where a lot of Wall Street men and prosperous Communist writers and radio pundits actually live in Connecticut to save money on their New York state income tax, but I am a citizen of very high type, so I never moved over, although the state line is only a drive and a pitch away.

So far, O. K., but from that point, there isn't much snow on the slide.

Finkel says I would have to get on the ballot by petition, because it would be futile to run in the Republican, Democratic or American Labor party primary, and, of course, he is right. That means that I have got to get 12,000 signatures, including at least 50 from each of the 62 counties and this, Finkel says, is bad.

This Is

Plenty Bad

"You really need 24,000 signatures," Finkel says, "because at least half of your signers would be no good for any one of a dozen reasons that we experts know about. Now this is plenty bad. You have to send your canvassers touring the sticks to get the names. What they'll do to you on their swindle sheets only a reporter can know."

Yes, I know.

"Well," Finkel says, "this is where they can knife you. They will take some county where you have a mere hundred names and visit the signers. Pretty soon, they'll have 51 or more affidavits from those people claiming they were defrauded, coerced and/or despoiled by your brutal canvassers. The first thing you know, you'll be in special term, then the appellate division, then the court of appeals and then, maybe, in jail."

"Assuming though that righteousness prevails you're on the ballot. As for cards, buttons, etc., suit yourself. There's a lot more, such as not hiring more than three carriages to a city election district to transport workers to the polls. In the country you can use six to a district."

4,000 Other

Details

"I should remind you, too, to pick a good name as emblem for your party. You must select one, because, otherwise, the secretary of state picks a name and emblem for you and that may be bad for your county. There are 4,000 other details that I could mention, but we can let them ride until."

Yes, we can let them ride. Those are enough details for now, although I am not at all for a party name and emblem. I would just call it throw Bob Wagner out of there party and my emblem would be a recognizable photograph of him with an upper-case X drawn across his features, meaning "canceled." Anyway, if a party with an ass for an emblem can elect a party three times, what have I to fear from any device?

But this is all too much bother. I thought it would be something like this, although, like most Americans who are really very naive about government and politics, I did have a haunting idea that you had to do was get the most votes.

Another thing that discourages me is that here I offer to give the people very superior service in the senate and give up a much better job to do it, and here I am a guy who hasn't any law firm monkeying around with receiverships or union litigation, nor any relatives on any public payroll, and you would think they were doing me a favor to elect me. And from the way they sniff around your private life and dig up past utterances, I would think they were hiring someone to be God.

So to hell with it. I will think up some other idea.

No Richer Gift.

I cannot ask of life a richer gift Than October woods, where sumac leaves And maples turn to flame in sunlight's drift Of golden tide that questions, "What men give." With sorrow twisting both his heart and mind For here is only beauty, free of pain, And every star-shaped bloom that you may find Will resurrect some sleeping joy again.

Late wanderings through depths of autumn art Have shown that peace abides in loveliness That goldenrod is music for the heart, And astors are the magic children gues. And, always, when remembering you I find your absence easier to bear! —WALTER BLACKSTOCK JR.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

TWO VISITORS—TWO STORIES A gentleman was in our town last week who had just returned from Europe on State Department business. He would not allow any interview.

He said to wait around a few days and then I might do a piece on what he had learned. He had been in Germany, Holland, France (occupied and unoccupied), in England and in Belgium.

Germany, he said, is sick of the war.

But Germany isn't weakened. Her stock of raw materials is good and her gasoline stores are still high. (The latest model of the German ME planes shot down in England show them to be faster than the old model; the engines are of the best of material, the instrument panel shows instruments as good as those in American and English planes. This substantiates his statement.)

Germany is confident of beating Russia, and has been all along. Germany wasn't surprised at the resistance. It was knowledge of the growing ability to resist, and attack, which caused the German army to attack Russia.

Germany is eating. No one is hungry. There is a fair variety. The food situation in other countries is very bad.

Germany (and this is important) is reducing the captive people to a low status of semi-slavery by simply taking away all the machinery from the captive countries. There is nothing left for the people to work at but the low, menial tasks. They do that or starve. There are no professions open for them, no skilled jobs for them to do. They are enslaved by their economic status, which, without machinery, is that of a semi-civilized country, or people.

This, of course, is the German theory of the dominant race, with all other races (including us) utterly dependent on the German will to eat and exist.

Nevertheless—Germany is sick of the war.

TO RETIRE HITLER If Russia should manage to extricate enough of her army beyond Moscow and maintain a front; and if the oil wells at Baku are not captured by midwinter, Germany will, he said, propose a peace.

The army is in charge.

The proposal would be, in brief, just this:

Germany would agree to let England retain her empire and agree to give up a part of western Europe and would—

Retire Hitler!

They believe that Hitler has become such a symbol that if they were to say, "We will get rid of Hitler," the psychological effect would be tremendous and that all the enemy peoples of England and America would demand an end to the war since Hitler would be out.

Hitler would be retired to a sort of honorary captivity, under protection of the army. He long has expressed a desire to retire and paint. The pale spirochaete has not progressed as far with him as with Mussolini. But it is at work. (It often serves as one of the milks of the gods.)

The Germans know that Hitler long has been a symbol, a sort of Messiah, or holy person. He has taken the place of God with a million or so Germans. Their tombstones no longer read, "Here died, in the faith of his Lord, Heinrich Mueller," but instead read, "Here died, in the faith of Adolf Hitler."

They could retire him, retain their inspiration, and go right along without a change in the government, its intentions, or its philosophy.

They would have time to consolidate, rearrange, redesign their weapons, replenish them—and then strike again.

That is almost sure to be done this winter.

It will be difficult to resist.

SECOND STORY Second visitor was one of Saturday, Dr. Emilio de Hoffmannsthal, with law offices in the Argentine, London and Washington.

I met him in England when he had just escaped from Austria, where he was a close friend of the Austrian government leaders, was high on the list of those "wanted" by the Germans. In Austria, where I went, I met his mother and his relatives.

He has been, for about three years, in South America.

"America," he said, "has no conception of how complete was the dominance of German influence in South America. No nation had done anything to combat it for about 20 years."

"If Germany should manage to effect a peace of her own making this winter, within six weeks after it became definite, she would take over the South American trade."

"Germany does not need to invade this country. She could, by forcing a lowering of the scale of living, create such bitterness and strife between capital and labor, such misery in the white collar classes, that this country would be ripe for her philosophy and her agents."

He believes that America, with the co-operation of South American countries, must rule the world once a real peace has been made, not at Germany's dictation.

"The Versailles treaty did not create this war," he said. "The men who brought on the war were those who made borders economically impassable; who established the nationalism idea that each country could, and should, live by itself. The new peace must be one which imposes trade agreements and regulations so that the small countries cannot be taken over by men who try to isolate them and set them one against the other."

Two interesting visitors.

The Greatest Teacher Is One Whose Example Can Make A People Great

By

Dudley Glass

As we go on our daily rounds, our admiration knows no bounds as we observe, on every hand, the progress made throughout the land.

The aeroplane, the streamlined train, the things wrapped up in cellophane; the great improvements made in jails, the gals with artificial nails, refrigerators that make ice and keep the vegetables nice; all testifying to the toil of those who burn the midnight oil. The chemist, working in his lab, can take a tiny dab of stuff and make some useful thing, or to the suffering comfort bring. The surgeon, in this year of grace, can carve you open any place, remove the cause, relieve the pain and quickly stitch you up again, nor leave a scar on which to look, except upon your pocketbook.

They manufacture furs, we think, by turning rabbit into mink; good breakfast foods are made of grass and galluses are spun from glass, and they have found a way, 'tis said, of shooting vitamins in bread.

These men are more than wondrous wise. We do not register surprise when we are told of great events promoted by these clever gents; yet, there is more for them to learn and for this one great thing we yearn—we hope we live to see the day and that it is not far away—when men can build a motor car, surpassing any made so far, a car that is so staunchly made it lasts until the last note's paid.

—OLLIE REEVES.

Country Weekly.

Up State Highway No. 9, some 60 miles north of Atlanta, is a little town called Dawsonville. There's a crowd there. One way leads to Dahlonega and Neel's Gap, and the other to Tate and its marble works.

Dawsonville isn't what you'd call a city. It has a courthouse—and an ancient brick line school building—but not much else in sight of the tourist.

But the Dawson County Advertiser has just issued its 54th anniversary number. With a pink cover.

Until a few years ago Dawson county was noted for having no railroad, no telegraph, no telephone. There is no railroad yet—and probably never will be—with highways and bus service so good. And perhaps no telegraph. But there are telephones now.

Just to show what folks can do if they set their minds to it—and work—this weekly newspaper has kept running 54 years. It is now the child of Mrs. E. H. Howard, whom I have known for a long time. She seems to be making a living from it.

The Rev. Henry Campbell, a Presbyterian minister, started it in 1887. It was traded and swapped about for years. Captain John B. Thomas, of Dahlonega, acquired it by swapping a gold watch for it, lock, stock, barrel and good will. It was burned out every now and then.

Mrs. Howard is the daughter of that Captain Thomas. She has been keeping the Advertiser alive and going for around 30 years.

It's not a big paper. There's little news up there and even less advertising. But it reflects the life of that mountain community and it's always a welcome visitor to my desk.

Shirts and Pins.

Shirt manufacturers complain

Mr. Reeves Pays Glowing Tribute to Modern Science—But—that under defense restrictions they can't get enough pins to pin up the shirts they sell to the stores.

That's a serious situation. Because every new shirt demands 17 pins—or more.

I breathe a hope that shirt makers may never get another pin, even if it destroys the industry.

On occasion, I dash into my humble abode and am reminded that we have a dinner date within 30 minutes. That doesn't disturb me. I can figure five minutes for a shave, another five for a shower—and then jump into clean clothes.

Did I say "jump?" I cry aloud that there's no clean shirt in the dresser, with buttons on it, except one in its original wrappings from the store. And I'd been saving that for my funeral or some other special occasion.

"Wear that," calls the Mistress of the Manor. So, recklessly, I try to bust into the treasured garment.

Pins! Pins! More pins! Shirt manufacturers must hire descendants of Houdini to insert pins into shirts. You can find their points but not their heads. They tuck pins away in a fashion which would baffle Dr. Einstein. It requires more than 17 minutes to find and extract 17 pins.

American invention has progressed. We have the airplane, the radio, the patent girdle with the zipper—or so I am informed—but shirts are still fixed up with pins.

What this country needs is a clean new shirt held in place by magnetism, telepathy or nothing. Preferably nothing. But anything but pins.

Placed in a Broad street store window—or it was there a few days ago:

"Wanted—Colored boy with bicycle who wants to work all day and sleep all night."

3 Churchmen To Tell Result Of War Study

Post-War Brotherhood To Be Subject of Trio at Tech Friday.

Fresh from a tour of the British Isles, Dr. Everett R. Clinchy, Presbyterian minister, the Rev. Father Vincent C. Donovan, Catholic priest, and Rabbi Morris S. Lazaron will tell the results of their survey at a round table discussion to be given Friday night in the Georgia Tech auditorium.

Atlanta is one of 75 cities in the United States which will hear the discussions of the trio, who went to England for the specific purpose of studying conditions there so that an intelligently formulated brotherhood of mankind can be worked out, ready to begin work as soon as the present war ends.

The Atlanta engagement was arranged by Dr. M. Ashby Jones, representing the Protestants; Walter Rich, representing the Jewish community, and Hughes Spalding, representing the Catholics.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

"THE LOVING HEART."

Last Monday afternoon the Ten Club had the honor of meeting and hearing Archibald Rutledge. The meeting was at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. T. K. Glenn, a perfect setting in which to meet and hear Dr. Rutledge. Mr. Pegrum had gone over to South Carolina in his private car to bring Dr. and Mrs. Rutledge to Atlanta, and Mr. Pegrum opened the meeting by reading selected passages from "My Colonel and His Lady" and "Home by the River." It was nearly sundown, and we were seated on the terrace of the Glenn home, miles from the hurrying city, with no sound save the song of birds in the majestic trees and the tinkle of a cowbell in the pasture lands at the foot of the hill.

And now, having read these passages, already familiar to every member of the club, let me close the books and present the author," said Mr. Pegrum.

Dr. Rutledge had been sitting there in the circle, listening to Mr. Pegrum, listening to the birds, glancing now and then at the faces of the men in the circle, and as often glancing to the far horizons. We knew that we were in the presence of a very real gentleman.

Shifting his position a bit, Dr. Rutledge sat on the edge of the sofa-chair and drew from his coat pocket a strange sort of apparatus. His eyes aglow with the enthusiasm of a youth, he said:

"Perhaps you would be interested in a device which I have perfected for calling wild turkeys. This little box is made of willow and locust wood. It required years of careful and painstaking work to perfect it, but it is absolutely perfect. This is the sound which the turkey hen gives . . . A gobbler can hear that call a half mile. She never gives the call more than once. If she did, he wouldn't come. And after he has come within a hundred feet of where she is, the hen then gives this call . . . Last season I shot 10 times and killed 11 gobblers."

We were leaning forward, as far as we could. He had been talking three minutes, and we were absolutely captivated. And then, putting the little box back in his pocket, he began:

"I was deeply touched, Mr. Pegrum, by what you said about the loving heart as you read there from my book about my father. Yes, he had a loving heart, and that is about the greatest thing you can say about any person, don't you think?"

And we knew that we were in the presence of a loving heart. I wish I had the space to tell you all he said—what he said about his father and mother, the old house at Hampton, the trees, the wild animals, the Negroes on the plantation. I wish you might have heard him describe the house in which eight generations of his family have lived—a house built in 1722 on land which the Rutledges have owned since 1686. Washington was a guest in that house, as was Lafayette, and many another notable person.

Dr. Rutledge taught school in Pennsylvania 33 years, but several years ago he came back to Hampton to restore the house and reclaim the plantation. His heart had been there all the time, and he yielded to the claims of his heart—the loving heart. "I love the peace and the beauty and the truth that God grants me at Hampton," he said.

English Lassie Finds Haven In Home Here

Mrs. Harry Schlesinger 'Adopts' Child Until War Is Over.

Thirty-month-old Valeria Evans still has a baby lisp, but she coos happiness and contentment at her "adopted" parent, Mrs. Harry L. Schlesinger, of Atlanta.

Little Valeria hails from South Wales, England, and is a war refugee, but she took the war with its ravages, its lowered economic standards and its hardships in stride until "Save the Children Federation," of New York, which is helping to lighten the rigors of English war winters and their dive bombers, found her a safe haven in Atlanta.

After the debacle broke and England was baptized with fire and shattering bombs, the organization began taking the children from stricken zones. Valeria, who has a 4-year-old brother, was found. Her parents are solid English stock, but even with some increase in earning capacity, it could not provide nourishing food and properly protect her.

She was sent to America, and Mrs. Schlesinger, mother of Mrs. Harry Schlesinger Moore and Mrs. Frank Neely, was touched when she learned of the child's plight. She asked to be allowed to keep her for the duration. The request was granted.

"Save the Children Federation" yesterday asked that the "adoption" be publicized because it said thousands of other homes in the country may be opened to thousands of helpless children in war stricken areas if American citizens realize the dangers and the limitations existing in home communities.

Gallup Poll Finds: War Studies in Schools Favored

By GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 19.—Three hundred and fifty students in two high schools at Cambridge, Mass., have sent petitions to the school committee asking that courses be given in military training.

"When we are drafted," says the student leader of the movement, "the Army course in high school will prove of great value. We want to be ready in the high schools if need arises."

Similar suggestions in the past have met with the criticism that military training in high school would smack too much of the dictator countries, where youngsters study military tactics before they are out of knee-pants.

A nationwide survey of public opinion by the Institute indicates, however, that the country is in favor of high school military training by a large majority. If school boards throughout the country were to hold public referenda on the issue, they would likely find, on the average, that for every ballot cast against the idea, two would be cast in favor.

The institute's survey was conducted on the following issue: "Do you think courses in military training should be given boys in high school in your community?"

Those with opinions voted as follows:

Yes 69%
No 31%

This is an issue on which people have no hesitation in expressing an opinion. Only one person in every 25 (4 per cent) was undecided or without an opinion.

The proposal is approved by a majority in every section of the country.

Discipline Applauded. It is not necessary to talk to many voters to discover that a very large proportion of Americans think modern youth needs training in obedience and discipline.

That is the reason most frequently given by those who favor military training in high school. People interviewed in all walks of life—mechanics, carpenters, farm wives, nurses, tax collectors, accountants, carpenters, secretaries, automobile salesmen, lawyers, doctors, teachers and all other types that go to make up a typical cross-section of American life—echo the views of a young engineer in a Seattle airplane factory who told interviewer Clara G. Jordan:

"It would train high school boys in co-ordination, and teach them obedience and discipline. That's what American kids need today."

Others favor the plan because they believe that if the young men ever have to do any fighting later on, they had better learn how to protect themselves in combat.

Voters opposed to the idea of training in high school say that high school boys are too young to be inflicted with rigid military rules, and that they will get such training in draft camps later on.

Mercer Will Decide On Freshman Hazing

See Your Eye Doctor---Then See Kalish & Ainsworth, Opticians

Prescriptions Filled With Utmost Care

Well-Known Opticians Located at 380 Peachtree Street.

By PRESS HUDDLESTON.

In an establishment covering a handsome and beautifully arranged and lighted sales room, with a complete and modern work room in the rear, at 380 Peachtree street, adjoining the Medical Arts building, Kalish & Ainsworth, opticians, are rendering a service highly appreciated by thousands who need eyeglasses, not only throughout the city, but throughout the entire south.

These two Atlantans, whose combined experience totals more than 25 years in manufacturing eyeglasses and filling oculists' prescriptions, are known far and wide for rendering a personalized optical service. Filling prescriptions from eye-physicians—grinding lenses to meet the most rigid requirements of oculists, the work being performed by scientifically trained experts—has been, and is today, the valuable service rendered by this optical firm.

In their files are thousands of prescriptions for patrons of all ages, filled in the 10 years or more the firm has been located on Peachtree street. These prescriptions are a continuous record of service and satisfaction to patrons, many of them showing that patrons call from year to year to have their glasses changed or remade as time and strain takes its toll on eyesight and doctors prescribe necessary changes.

The optical business is necessarily technical and is one which requires training and skill. Kalish & Ainsworth declare it their desire and policy to protect not only

J. N. Kalish. W. N. Ainsworth Jr. the public but themselves from competition of unskilled men. Eye physicians know that, unless their prescriptions are carefully and correctly filled, their entire examination and prescription for glasses is valueless in any attempted correction of vision.

"This is a day of specialization," says Mr. Kalish, "and it is certainly wiser to consult a man with a thorough knowledge of these delicate organs. After the eyes have been examined by an eye physician, or oculist, care must be taken to have the prescription filled by a thoroughly competent optician, specializing in the manufacture of glasses."

Commenting on the need of many for glasses, Mr. Ainsworth says: "Yes, seven people in every 10 need glasses. These are actual figures, compiled by the Better Vision Institute. They represent a very sad but illuminating example of the tremendous strain which modern living and lighting impose upon man's priceless seeing organs."

You, Mr. Reader, are no doubt aware that tired, overworked eyes are not efficient eyes—eye-strain and glare-strain cause headaches, irritability and other nervous disorders. Has it occurred to you that the average school child has to read 15 times more today than in 1900? That is an important matter for parents to consider. College students' reading has increased five times in the same period. The amount of reading done by professional and business men has increased proportionately. While while publications going into the average home have increased 170 per cent. All this has brought home to countless thousands the importance of having their eyes protected — and nothing is surer than to have an eye-physician examine the eyes and, when given a prescription for glasses, have that prescription filled by known and reliable opticians—men whose life work has been in this work.

Since glasses are an important part of one's costume, Kalish & Ainsworth believe that they should be attractive and becoming, and they, therefore, give special attention in the selection of the style most suited to the individual. In perfectly fitting glasses to the contour of the face they consider the height of the cheek bones, the breadth of the nose bridge, the width of the temples, and the line of the cheek.

J. N. Kalish has been actively identified with the optical business for many years. He received his early training with one of the largest manufacturers of glasses in this country, and he has since made a special study of optical science. W. N. Ainsworth Jr. has also had more than a score of years of training in the optical line. Working personally with his partner, Mr. Kalish, the two are always to be found ready with every service anyone in need of eye-glasses could hope for.

Lyle & Gaston Announce 11 Prize Winners

Photographic Contestants Represented in Pittsburgh Meeting.

Eleven happy people have been notified that their snapshots have not only won them prizes, but the distinction of representing the southeast at a great national photographic competition being held today (October 20) in Pittsburgh, where some of America's outstanding judges will choose 11 national winners.

The 11 photographs were chosen from among the prize-winners of the Neighborhood Photographic Competition conducted this summer by Lyle & Gaston and the many neighborhood Snapshot Service Stations of the southeast. Each month a winner was declared in each neighborhood, and these winners were placed before three of Atlanta's most famous photographers for judging. Chairman of this committee, chosen by the Atlanta Camera Club, was Leonid Skvirsky, A.R.P.S. Serving with him were H. J. Phillips, F.R.P.S., and Mrs. Phillips, who is ranked as No. 3 among salaried contributors. These three judges chose 11 prints, awarding prize to Dale M. Andrew, 2284 Boulevard Granada, Atlanta, for the picture "Sand Dunes." This carries with it a silver cup and $25 in cash. The ten classification prize winners, whose names follow, were awarded prizes of $5 each, in addition to the neighborhood prizes already awarded.

These are the ten classification winners:

J. Herbert Browne, 449 Claire drive, Atlanta, "Just Had to Rest," W. C. Chas. P. O. Box 700, Atlanta, "Come on in; the Water's Fine."

Mrs. Stanley B. Giraitis, 567 Lake Shore drive, N. E., Atlanta, "Dressed for Comfort."

Miss Pearl Hall, Acworth, Ga., "Just Pups."

Izador Itzkow, Lee street, Thomson, Ga., "Sands of the Sea."

ATTRACTIVE LAMP DEPARTMENT—Above shows a part of the enlarged lamp department of the Capital Electric Studios, 675 Peachtree street. Gifts and crystal fixtures are also shown in abundance at this popular electric house.

Display of Handsome Lamps Made by Capital Electric Co.

Since moving to its new location, at 675 Peachtree street, the Capital Electric Studios, of which Frank S. McGaughey is president, has greatly enlarged its lamp department and is handling such lamps as are made by Paul Hanson and Kuhri, both manufacturers being universally known as designers and makers of exclusive style lamps.

The lamp department of the concern is shown to splendid advantage in a large, well-lighted display room, where approximately 200 artistic lamps are constantly on display, in a range from small boudoir lamps to large floor lamps and torches.

This handsome display of lamps is constantly visited by scores of Atlanta women, who find the newest designs in stock, and has more than justified Mr. McGaughey in giving larger room for his lamp department, and for adding the lines of Paul Hanson and Kuhri.

The electrical house has also added to its large stock a most complete assortment of gifts of all types and price range, selected from all parts of the world. Patrons will find Persian glass and brass, made into flower bowls and vases—such pieces as add distinctive charm to their rooms—and also will find odd pieces that would make appropriate gifts, selected from England, France and China.

Also the concern has been made exclusive agents for Cumbow

China Decorating Company products. The products of this concern are recognized by the Smithsonian Institution, and are the only real lustre-made china of this country. A complete assortment of these beautiful pieces will be found at the Capital Electric Company.

Both Mr. McGaughey and N. D. Foster, vice president, have just returned from New York, where they purchased a shipment of crystal fixtures just arrived in this country from England. This probably will be the last shipment of such merchandise received in this country—at least for a long time—because freight rates have advanced 1,300 per cent, which will make prohibitive further shipments of this type.

Mr. McGaughey states that William Foster, Mrs. Carroll McGaughey and Mrs. J. M. Needham will be found on the floor of the concern at all times, ready to give assistance to patrons in the selection of goods.

B. E. Wagstaff Opens Motor Agency Here

Company Direct Dealers for De Soto and Plymouth Automobils.

Last Wednesday ushered in the formal opening of the Wagstaff Motor Company, Inc., in a large and excellently arranged building at 449 West Peachtree street, northwest.

This concern, with B. E. Wagstaff as its president and general manager, is the new direct dealer for Atlanta and northern Georgia for De Soto and Plymouth cars, and ready for showing on opening day were the new models for 1942 on these popular cars. The company is still attracting a large number of callers who admire the outstanding styles shown in the new models.

While Wagstaff is a somewhat new name in the motor field of Atlanta, it is destined to early become a leading name in the automobile line throughout this city and territory. With the two great Chrysler Corporation cars, De Soto and Plymouth—with modern service equipment, and with men who know their jobs, both as expert mechanics and salesmen—the concern will soon build itself into one of Atlanta's large and splendid business institutions.

In addition to Wagstaff, as

president, is C. R. (Dick) Long, as vice president. B. E. Wagstaff has been identified with the motor car business for 18 to 20 years in an executive and sales capacity, having been with Chrysler Corporation as district manager, special representative and assistant regional manager. Long, a well-known Atlanta businessman for the past 25 years, is a partner in the Kibler & Long Clothing Company.

Messrs. Wagstaff and Long will be aided in the operation of the new company by a staff of approximately 30 men and women. Among this group are: Jack Reid, who will have charge of the service department, and Claude White, who will supervise used car sales and merchandising. Others are P. E. Holland, head mechanic; Bill Johnson, shop foreman, and W. C. McDaniel; salesmen, Roy Ragin, C. H. Weatherly, Rudy Brown, who has many friends in musical Atlanta; Horace Goza and Roy Forsyth. The office and credit department will be managed by Bill Thornton, assisted by Miss Jennie Duke.

The new concern, in addition to the handsome display rooms fronting on West Peachtree street, has in the rear and adjoining some 25,000 square feet of floor space, and will conduct one of the finest service departments in the south.

The very latest type of equipment and special precision tools have been installed and the department is manned by expert mechanics. Everything is set to give highest quality work on all makes of cars at reasonable prices. In the De Soto cars, 115 horsepower is at your command. With the greatest engine ever put under a De Soto hood, this surging horsepower is under your toe—truly a "power-master." This extra power-margin fairly lifts De Soto over the steepest hills. Its finish is a dark, rich, burnished velvet smoothness—shoots you ahead of the traffic pack like a fullback knifing through a third-string line. It's driving at its exciting best with all the performance, safety and economy that only plus-power gives.

No other De Soto has ever offered such exquisitely detailed appointments as the new edition of this stunning big car. The new instrument panel is an example. Its finish is a dark, rich, burnished velvet smoothness—shoots you ahead of the traffic pack like a fullback knifing through a third-string line. It's driving at its exciting best with all the performance, safety and economy that only plus-power gives.

Plymouth has long been America's Number 1 Safety Car in the low-price field. Plymouth pioneered in giving to buyers of low-priced cars hydraulic brakes, the safety steel body, safeguard wheels, safety styling, rotary door latches, the sway eliminator, the safety signal speedometer. You can drive this Plymouth with confidence, knowing that no car could give greater protection to you and those who ride with you.

McRae Dairy Is Supplying Many Homes

Has Modern Dairy Outfit Out on Cascade Road Near City.

Grade A raw milk, "with that sweet Jersey taste," is still being served to hundreds of families around Atlanta and through Atlanta by W. P. McRae Dairy, Inc. This dairy is located on the Cascade road, out a few miles from the city, where nearly 100 high-grade, well-kept cows are housed in a modern place, and from which the latest electric milkers extract hundreds of gallons of rich, wholesome milk twice daily.

Deliveries of McRae Dairy's sweet milk, its churned butter-milk and pure butter are made in four large white trucks—one for wholesale delivery and three for the retail customers. These latter customers reside practically all over the city, with the larger proportion of them on the west side of the city and in the West End section.

Mr. McRae is the owner and manager, with the able assistance of his wife. He lives on the property, close adjoining his dairying outfit, in a most unique log house built by himself a few years ago.

"A-goin' since 1936—a-growin' all he time," is a very conservative statement on the literature of the McRae Dairy. His dairy lands afford fine pasturage for the cows, and augmenting this Mr. McRae says he feeds his milkers on Larro feed, "as it is about the best I can find, and the most productive of good, rich milk," he says.

McRae drivers of his fleet of trucks are on the job every morning at 3 o'clock, and before hundreds of their customers are ready for breakfast their bottle of rich, wholesome milk—either sweet or buttermilk, or rich cream—is at their door.

His telephone number is Raymond 6436 if you should desire a good milkman—and who doesn't?

Michigan and Minnesota Play Grid Headliner on Saturday

Great Performance WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 19.—Never before in the history of Columbia or, for that matter, in the annals of any major school, has a defense worked so effectively against a running game as Georgia's six-man line operated on Saturday against Columbia. That is, when two teams are supposed to be evenly matched.

Lou Little praised the Georgia team highly for its performance in limiting Columbia to one yard rushing in the first half and a total of three yards for the game.

Columbia had impressed eastern writers so much that they already were beating the Rose Bowl drums. And the writers were amazed, to say the least, to find Georgia sacrificing the defense against passes to bottle Columbia's vaunted running game which had piled up almost 400 yards on Princeton.

The Bulldogs used a six-two-two-one and concentrated on stopping the double and triple spinners, reverses, and straight line smashes. They let Governor throw short passes to his heart's content. They wouldn't let him run.

Not at any time in Lou Little's coaching career was he so completely outdone. He had a fine team, a team that had licked Brown and Princeton handily. But it never had a real chance against Georgia—except in one fleeting period in the fourth quarter when Georgia almost let Columbia's passing game get out of hand. And then big Clyde Ehrhardt, 200-pound sophomore center, from Coach Ears Whitworth's home town of Blytheville, Ark., stepped up in the clutch and broke up the aerial attack.

Georgia's line did such a magnificent job that it actually appeared during the entire game that Columbia had no running plays.

Frankie Hailed Frankie Sinkwich got a terrific play in the post-game reports in the New York papers. Here are a few examples—

Robert F. Kelley (New York Times)—"It was true what they said about Sinkwich. The boy with the wired jaw can play extraordinarily good football, but there were others in the flaming red jerseys of Georgia who played with him yesterday, and Columbia's dream of gridiron empire faded on the end of a 7-3 defeat."

Bob Considine (Daily Mirror)—"Broken-jawed halfback named Frankie Sinkwich broke Columbia's heart and its unbeaten season yesterday at Baker field by leading an excellent Georgia team to a 7-3 victory. Playing with his chin in a steel hammer, Sinkwich, a hot-blooded Confederate from the magnolia-scented streets of Youngstown, Ohio, dominated the dreary day. He wrung cheer after cheer from the large audience, scoring the Georgia touchdown in a personally conducted tour through the Columbia line in the first period, and sparking his team so generally that it held Columbia to a net scrimmage gain of three lonely yards. He was matched in spirit, but not in effectiveness, by Paul Governali."

Jesse Abramson (Herald Tribune)—"A Georgia team that blocked and tackled and hit like a Columbia team, and even better than Columbia this day, shook its Frankie Sinkwich loose for a touchdown in the first six minutes and fought ferociously to a 7-3 victory over the Lions at Baker field. The combative southerners throttled Lou Little's hidden-ball defense to an incredible net of three yards on the ground with their impregnable line, defended alertly and well against the enforced hail of passes thrown by harassed Paul Governali, and marched back to Athens, Ga., with a well-deserved triumph."

Joe Cummissey (PM)—"Fireball Frankie Sinkwich, the University of Georgia Rebel from Youngstown, Ohio, took six minutes to get warmed up on the soft green turf of Baker field yesterday afternoon and then scattered through Columbia's light blue forward wall for six points—and the ball game."

And so the comments ran. Sinkwich has only to maintain a steady performance in the remaining games and he is a powerful bet for All-America.

Breaking a Jinx Georgia's victory, one of the south's outstanding intersectional triumphs, was really the first this writer ever has seen that counted.

In jaunts with teams here and there, including the east, middle west and far west, it had been our ill fortune to always be writing from the losing side. In fact, I never saw many southern teams do much scoring.

And so it was a real pleasure to sit there in Baker field and watch Georgia roll on in spite of obviously prejudiced officiating which cut 100 yards from Frankie Sinkwich's scrimmage total.

Somebody ought to give the head linesman of the game a Columbia sweater. For he sure earned it Saturday.

The second of which was fumbled and recovered by a Georgia player, but all that happened was that an official ruled it an incomplete pass.

Georgia deserved to have the ball deep in Columbia territory and might have gone on to score again but it was just as well—except that eastern officials still retain the old prejudices.

BUTTS SPEAKS—Coach Wally Butts stayed over for an extra day in order to fill a speaking engagement at the regular Monday luncheon of the New York football writers. Stanley Woodward, sports editor of The Herald Tribune and president of the writers, invited Butts to be the club's speaker. The Georgia coach will return to Athens by plane.

Wally spotted something early in the Columbia game. He saw the strong side tackle, Makofske, dropping back to defend against passes. So when Sinkwich faked his pass and Makofske fell back, Van Davis hit him like a ton of bricks from his position at right end and flying Frankie pounded on to the game's only touchdown. Makofske didn't drop back any more during the afternoon.

Impressive Wins There were three really impressive wins for Southeastern Conference teams Saturday. They were the victories for Tulane over North Carolina, L. S. U. over Rice and Georgia over Columbia.

And Vanderbilt still goes on undefeated. Red Sanders has done a great job with the Commodores. Alabama's victory over Tennessee provides an outstanding attraction Saturday at Legion field, Birmingham. The Bulldogs suffered only one injury. Harry Kuniandy suffered a knee injury and will be out of action for several weeks. He had been playing brilliant ball.

Otherwise, the Bulldogs escaped a rugged contest with all hands ready for the Crimson Tide.

Texas' Prestige As Grid Power Hits New Peak.

Navy, Penn Unbeaten in East; Oregon Takes Charge on Coast.

By BILL BONI
NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(AP)—In the task of separating the 1941 college football power plants from the "plants," the University of Texas Longhorns are being extremely helpful.

Each Saturday the Longhorns stamped their way past a major rival, and after four such smashing showings rate tops in their own Southwest and one-two in national ranking. What's more, they appear able to go through unchecked at least until their Thanksgiving Day date with Texas A. and M. or their meeting with Oregon 10 days later—a game which, should Oregon wind up as the west's Rose Bowl entry, is likely to complicate choice of an "eastern" representative.

Dana Bible's Texans, fruit of his painstaking five-year-plan, hiked their four-game scoring total to 156 points yesterday by trouncing Arkansas, 48-14. Bible used three teams, each of which scored; he didn't use, and obviously didn't need, Star Fullback Pete Layden, and his club's only apparent weakness was on pass defense, for the Razorbacks made 141 yards through the air.

Outside of Texas and Duke of the Southern Conference, which came from behind to whip Colgate 27-14 and looks safe for the rest of its schedule, sectional leaders elsewhere still are obscured by the smoke of battle, both past and present.

MAY SETTLE TITLE
Next Saturday's clash at Ann Arbor between Michigan and Minnesota should go a long way toward straightening out the national and the Big Ten alignment.

Michigan, with Sophomore Tom Kuzma pitching the touchdown passes and a shockproof defense fighting off all but one Northwestern thrust, beat the slightly-favored Wolverines, 14-7. Minnesota, held in check for one quarter, rolled to a 39-0 rout of Pitt, but in the process had Star Halfback Bruce Smith added to an injury list which already included Urban Odson, anchor of the Gopher line, and Ace Blocking Back Bob Sweiger.

These two performances, coupled with Ohio State's hard-won 16-4 decision over Purdue, in which the deciding margin was produced when Jim Daniell blocked a first-period Purdue punt for a safety, set up the Wolverines and Gophers as the class of the Western Conference.

Vanderbilt, which switched Jack Jenkins from blocking back to ball carrier and got all its points from this Texarkana (Tex.) 200-pounder, beat Georgia Tech 14-7 to move into the lead. Southern Conference front rank, a place, however, will have to be reserved for Tulane, which is undefeated in conference competition and roared back from its one-point loss to Rice with a 52-6 shattering victory in North Carolina, featured by Lou Thomas' four touchdowns, the first on a 102-yard runback of the opening kickoff.

DARTMOUTH FALLS
The east informal Ivy League was left with two pace-setters through the defeats of Dartmouth and Columbia. One is Navy, outplayed by Cornell for the first half but gifted with sufficient man-power to wear down the Ithacaans for a 14-0 triumph. The other is Penn, also shackled for two periods before cutting loose with a passing-power attack that rolled over big but puncheon Princeton for a 23-0 count.

Of the non-Ivy Leaguers, Fordham finally omitted mistakes in staging four sustained marches that beat West Virginia, 27-0. A shade back of the Rams, but also unbeaten and untied, are Temple, 14-0 winner over Penn State, and Duquesne and Villanova, which protected their perfect slates with Friday night victories over St. Vincent and Baylor.

Oregon moved into the Pacific Coast Conference forefront on a 19-7 conquest of California, with Tommy Roblin feeding the ball to Curt Mecham for the first touchdown, scoring the second after a blocked kick, and racing back 62 yards with a punt for the third. Utah, Rocky Mountain pace-setter, was held to an unexpected 6-6 tie by Brigham Young.

MISSOURI-NEBRASKA
The Big Six set-up should be cleared when Missouri tangles with Nebraska next Saturday. The Tigers looked the goods in scoring on all sorts of plays from all parts of the field in their 39-13 lacing of Iowa State, while Nebraska, in one of the day's rare upsets, dropped a 21-13 decision to Indiana.

Comebacks of L. S. U., Tulane, Ole Miss Feature S. E. C. Play

Vandy Remains Only Unbeaten Team in League

Georgia Plays Tide as Tech Meets Auburn; Ole Miss Faces Tulane.

By PRICE HOWARD, Associated Press Sports Writer.

Four Southeastern Conference teams struck back on the football comeback trail today amid spectacular form reversals that dumped two more of the nation's undefeated eleven among the also-rans. Vanderbilt remained unbeaten atop the conference race.

Three of them rebounded from defeats, ties or both to conquer intersectional foes. The smashing victories of once-beaten Tulane, twice-defeated Louisiana State and once-beaten Mississippi lifted the deep south's football back to the heights expected of it.

L. S. U., whipped by Holy Cross and Texas and tied by Mississippi State, turned in the most sensational comeback by socking Rice, 27-0, a week after the Texans blasted Tulane's unbeaten hopes. It was Rice's first setback. Georgia's unbeaten but tied Bulldogs also spoiled an unblemished record by taming the Columbia Lions, 7-3, as broken-jaw Frankie Sinkwich set a hot pace behind the gallant work of a line that yielded only three yards to Columbia's rushing attack.

A week ago the Lions rushed over about 400 yards against Princeton. Tulane's powerful Green Wave, hitting the heights of its spectacular scoring spree, routed North Carolina, 52-6, behind the sensational running of Lou Thomas. The Greensies, scoring five of their eight touchdowns with plays ranging from 26 yards to Thomas' 102-yard kickoff gallop, have the only other clean record within the conference.

REBELS GET GOING. Mississippi, whipped by Georgetown and tied by Georgia, bumped Holy Cross, 21-0, with a rushing Ray Terrell in a starring role. Terrell twice got away on end reverses, scoring once on a 68-yard run and again on a 14. The Southeastern made it four out of five in intersectional competition through Kentucky's 21-6 victory over Xavier and Auburn's 20-7 loss to Southern Methodist.

Vanderbilt's Commodores, who won only one of seven S. E. C. trials last year, scored their second loop victory and their fourth win in a row by trimming Georgia Tech, 14-7, blocking back Jack Jenkins' running, tackling and blocking gave the Engineers their first conference defeat. He scored all Vandy points as J. P. Moore stuffed off Tech threats with some nifty punting.

Alabama's Crimson Tide administered the first loop setback suffered by Tennessee's defending champions since 1937 by nosing out the Vols, 9-2, with early scoring in a typical Tide-Vol struggle. "Bama halted the usually troublesome Johnny Butler as Jimmy Nelson's pinch punting helped hold Tennessee at bay."

FLORIDA UPSET. A 58-yard pass play enabled Maryland to upset Florida, 13-12, in the fourth quarter. Mississippi State was idle last week.

Vanderbilt will rank its record against Princeton at Nashville this week on a program sporting four conference clashes and three intersectionals.

Three traditional struggles will pit Georgia against Alabama at Birmingham, Auburn against Georgia Tech at Atlanta and Mississippi against Tulane at New Orleans. Florida will invade L. S. U. for a night game.

Tennessee and Kentucky are to be hosts to Cincinnati and West Virginia, respectively, in other intersectionals. Mississippi State has a breather in Union.

Southeastern Conference football standings:

Hapes and Hovious Accept Game Bids

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 19.—(AP)—The Blue and Grey Association announced today that five of the south's outstanding footballers had accepted invitations to participate in its 1941 All-Star, North-South classic here December 27.

Those listed as accepting were Bill Dudley, University of Virginia's nation-leading scorer; Merle Hapes and Junie Hovious, University of Mississippi's triple-threat twins; Kyle Gillespie, Texas Christian signal caller, and Harry Dunkle, co-captain and backfield ace at the University of North Carolina.

Coaches for the South have not yet been selected. Coaches Carl Snavely, of Cornell, and Lynn Waldorf, of Northwestern, will be back to tutor their fourth Blue squad. The North has won twice, the South once.

Kaiser Breaks 80 First Time in Life

A. J. Kaiser, who has been playing golf for nigh on to 20 years, broke 80 for the first time yesterday. He shot a 78 at West End.

With Kaiser on his own record-breaking round were F. C. Dought, J. H. Lovell and J. W. Walton.

FIVE-GAITED CHAMP—Bill Black, up on Gray Dawn, captured the five-gaited stake in the amateur horse show Saturday at North Fulton Park. The trophy, donated by Mrs. C. Guy Woolford for the first time, must be won three times for permanent ownership.

BOWL WEEK.

When the present football season opened there were four bowl nominations around the forefront of publicity. They were Stanford, Texas, Tulane and Duke. There were others, of course, but three of these were supposed to represent the home guard of three bowl celebrations—Rose, Sugar and Cotton.

In checking over the schedules of the above teams you could call them with Harry Mehre's Mississippi squad. So this coming Saturday is sure to have a decisive effect on the bowl situation all along the line.

One defeat isn't enough to wreck a bowl candidate. Before last New Year's Day Nebraska, Fordham, Texas A. & M. and Georgetown all had been beaten once. But there will be no loud bowl hulla-balloo for any team that has dropped two games.

There is hardly a chance that Duke will be beaten down the stretch. It could happen, but probably won't happen.

Vanderbilt is another bowl possibility of prominence, but with Tulane, Alabama and Tennessee in the road the handicap is a heavy one. The same is true of Santa Clara if the Broncos can run over the remainder of their string—especially Stanford.

Out of Line and Order. There can be no complaint over Pittsburgh and Carnegie Tech demoralizing football. There could be no complaint if both decided they wanted to drop football. But when they drop far down the scale and still keep such teams as Minnesota, Michigan and Notre Dame on their schedules it doesn't mean anything even remotely resembling reason or common sense.

It so happens their faculties and their schedule makers are not tossed into the pit with Wolverine, Gopher and the South Bend Simon. They should try it once.

Explaining Form Reversals. Several of our best known trainers in the matter of horse-flesh were talking over jolting form reversals that hit so many uncertain nags.

"I can give you at least one good reason," an able veteran said. "One of the main ideas of racing is supposed to be the improvement of the breed. But the horse, which happens to make racing possible, is the one detail that is completely overlooked. What do I mean? For example, we'll take the stalls where most of them have to sleep. These stalls are feet deep in four formations or relations that haven't been changed in years. There are times when I could well use a gas mask when I enter. Horses are made to sleep in stalls that a scavenger couldn't endure."

"I know some tracks around New York," another trainer said, "that have not cleaned or changed their stalls in eight or ten years. And then they wonder why a four-to-five shot suddenly quits in the stretch, after a night of fumes that would wreck the stomach of a rhinoceros."

BEARS RUN WILD. CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The rampant Chicago Bears uncorked another savage offensive to crush the Detroit Lions, 49 to 0, today before 29,980 spectators.

ALMA MATER DEFEAT NORTHWESTERN in Dyche stadium Saturday. But when the final gun went off, he slumped in his seat, dead apparently from a heart attack.

DIES AT GAME. EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Harry S. Durant, Michigan football player of 1902, lived to see his Alma Mater defeat Northwestern in Dyche stadium Saturday. But when the final gun went off, he slumped in his seat, dead apparently from a heart attack.

Meet Johnny Grubbs!

He's a regular fellow . . . an American citizen like you and me. But he's had more than his share of hard knocks in this life. Last month, Johnny's teacher made a telephone call. "Johnny Grubbs hasn't been to school in weeks," she said. "I wish you'd investigate . . ." So the Family Welfare Society went to work. They found the Grubbs living in a little shack across town . . . 5 small children, a tubercular mother, and a father who had been earning $18 a week in a near-by mill—until an accident at home cost him the use of an eye. Johnny, they found, selling papers down town. At the age of 10 he had quit school and become the sole support of his family. Today . . . through 4 of the 34 Community Fund organizations, the Grubbs family is beginning life anew. The Atlanta Tuberculosis Association is taking care of Johnny's mother. The Family Welfare Society is helping Johnny's father learn the trade of a barber. The children are living at one of the Child Welfare foster boarding homes . . . until their father can support them again. And Johnny attends a shop class at the Atlanta Boys' Club by night. REMEMBER the case of Johnny Grubbs when you make out your pledge this year. There are hundreds more like his! REMEMBER that the Atlanta Community Fund works to keep people off relief . . . not on! REMEMBER that the Community Fund is Atlanta's biggest bargain. It saves human life, human suffering. It saves you money!

19TH ANNUAL COMMUNITY FUND DRIVE BEGINS TODAY!

Sally Saver Cooks at Cedartown

By Sally Saver.

Cedartown women thought that Sally Saver's cooking school was worth even more than their own attendance. They reserved a special section of the auditorium for their cooks so that they too might learn more about economical and savory cooking.

United Daughters of the Confederacy sponsored the Cedartown cooking school which Sally Saver conducted. Over 200 people were present in Cedartown's modern municipal auditorium when Sally Saver gave her talks and demonstrations on the preparation of various foods in the most scientific manner.

Whole meals were planned with an eye to money-saving and were prepared with time-saving in mind. One complete meal was cooked on top of the stove, another was an entirely oven-cooked meal. All dishes were selected so that they presented well balanced food values, economically, and emphasis was placed on doing unusual things with everyday foods.

The auditorium was equipped with model electric equipment including modern stove and refrigerator. It was beautifully decorated with fall shrubs and flowers and a local business organization presented a large basket of chrysanthemums and gladioli to The Constitution food editor.

Mrs. E. D. Turner, president of Cedartown U. D. C., was assisted by Miss Ruth Hicks, Mrs. B. F. Wright and Mrs. C. V. Wood in presenting the school. All proceeds from the ticket sales went to charitable enterprises sponsored by the U. D. C. Food which was prepared during the cooking school was presented to members of the audience as attendance prizes at the end of the show.

Louella Parsons Attributes Deanna's Fight With Studio To Vaughn Paul's Walk Out

By Louella O. Parsons.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 19.—(INS). Today Universal confirmed the rumor that Deanna Durbin, their pride and joy—not to forget their bread and butter—was officially suspended. For days the rumors have been rampant that Deanna and her studio were having trouble and thereby hangs several tales. I've always said I am neutral in these contract squabbles and I repeat it again. So here are both sides: Deanna flew east last week to huddle with Cliff Work and Nate Blumberg on getting the final say on her stories, directors and casts. She feels other important actresses have this right and believes she should, too. Apparently the demands she made were not granted.

On the other hand I can't help but feel that the departure of her bridegroom, Vaughn Paul, from the Universal production line had a lot to do with Deanna's unhappiness. It is certainly a coincidence that her troubles should start right after his resignation. Deanna failed to put in an appearance for conferences on "They Lived Alone" last Thursday, which could automatically bring on a suspension. I cannot believe the feud will be long lived because Universal and Deanna came up the success ladder together and previous relations have been sweetness and light. As for Vaughn—RKO is awaiting the return of Joseph Breen from Mexico to sign Deanna's husband on a producing contract.

There's more to Betty Field's trip to New York than just seeing the new shows and buying some new clothes. Irving Rapper, up and coming Warner director, is in the big town for the premiere of "One Foot in Heaven," which he directed, and don't say I told you, but he is the chief reason for Betty's sudden trip east. This romance blossomed very quietly while the pretty Flairly was working on "King's Row" and Irving was megaphoning "One Foot in Heaven." His Alma Mater is rewarding him with another important assignment—the megaphoning of "Humoresque" when he returns from the east.

I am sure many of our readers read "One Hour of Glory," by Mary Roberts Rinehart, which was published in the May, 1940, Good Housekeeping magazine. It was written in Mrs. Rinehart's best style and was a story of a middle-aged man who goes from his own little town to Washington to visit his son who is in the diplomatic service—and the old man's experiences in Washington. Well, RKO has bought the story from Warners, who had originally purchased it, and Sol Lesser will produce it with Thomas Mitchell as the old man who crowds so much human interest, comedy and even romance into a few days of his life.

Wait until you see "Dumbo," the little elephant with the big ears and blue eyes and his sidekick, the mouse. I don't know when I have enjoyed a picture as much. It's Walt Disney at his most ingenious self with sophisticated comedy, pathos and the most delightful lyrics, to say nothing of the technicolor that is out of this world it's so beautiful. "Dumbo" is really an answer to every mother's prayers, for it is perfect for the children and moreover it's adult entertainment. There is so much of human nature in the mean, gossipy elephants and the fierce mother love that Mrs. Dumbo has for her long-eared son. The pink elephant Dumbo and the mouse see after they take a drink by mistake, the storks carrying their bundles—all the creations of that Disney imagination, mark him as one of the few Hollywood geniuses.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Stephen Morehouse Avery, well-known writer, and Janet Vaughn are expected to take a trip to the altar; George Montgomery's gift of 25 gardenias so thrilled Jane Withers that she said it made her well. She is recuperating from a tonsillitis; Hedy Lamarr, once Reginald Gardiner's heart beat, invited him to go to the "Sundown" opening; here's a new twosome—Bruce Cabot and Carole Landis at the Mocambo for an evening of dancing; Walter Wanger will be on the same clipper with Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon, leaving Saturday morning; the Lupe Velez-Eric Remarque friendship continues. Lupe was really dignified the other eve when she dined with him at the Biarritz; Tyrone Power is erecting a second building on the sunset strip; Blinnie Barnes goes home tomorrow and the report that she has had a relapse is in error; friends of Grace Moore and her husband, Val Pava, will be sorry to hear that Val has had to return to Saranac. Grace had such hopes that Val would be on the road to recovery; Mary Lee Fairbanks will spend most of the time while Doug Fairbanks Jr. is in the Navy at her home in Virginia; Bill Crook arrives in New York from South America next week and Dixie goes east to meet him. Apparently she changed her mind about South America; Abbott and Costello, guests of honor at the Copacabana, really went to town and brought down the house. George Raft and Betty Grable, Matt Fox and Frances Neal were ring-siders who applauded Lou and Bud's nonsense. That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Miss Lucille Wilds, voted New York's "Dream Girl" by New York's leading artists and photographers, believes that a woman's smile is her most important beauty asset. Below she tells how she keeps her own teeth as a dazzling part of her famous smile.

Model Approves This New Dentifrice

By Winifred Ware.

A beauty tip has just reached us straight from the mouth of a New York model. Her word to us is that a dazzling smile is a woman's most important charm asset and that the charm of such a smile depends on clean, sparkling teeth.

The young lady, who is Miss Lucille Wilds, certainly should know what it's all about, for she has recently been voted "Dream Girl" by New York's leading artists and photographers. She knows that it is also important for her to guard her smile for the future by caring for her teeth properly.

This she does by using a new liquid dentifrice, morning and night. It is free from abrasives and contains a new scientific cleansing discovery which helps whisk away ugly, dull film, leaving teeth bright and sparkling, without any chance of damaging the softer part of the teeth along the gum line. This ruby-clear liquid leaves the mouth with a wonderfully "clean feeling," a refreshed, pleasant taste.

If you'd like to know the name of this dentifrice, and where you can get it, call Winifred Ware at Walnut 6565, or write in care of The Constitution, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Gaiety Combats Self-Consciousness

DEAR DIXIE:

I am so self-conscious I never enjoy myself when I go anywhere or when anyone comes to see me. I am always afraid I will do or say something awkward or out of place. How can I overcome this? My life is miserable.

JACQULYN.

The first thing to do is to forget the fear that you are not measuring up to other girls. That is really the cause of self-consciousness. Figure out your best qualities and play them up for all they are worth. Remember that when you begin to feel like a perfect minus the consequence is that those you meet accept you at your own evaluation. Develop a well-groomed and attractive appearance. Accent your good points. If you feel an attack of self-consciousness coming on, remember some of the compliments you have had. Compliments on your eyes, your hair, the way you dance. Laughter is a good antidote for self-consciousness. Learn to be gay and impress yourself as well as others that you are having a good time.

FRIENDSHIP SHOULD DETERMINE INVITATIONS TO PARTY

Dear Dixie:

I am a senior in high school. I want to have a party at Thanksgiving. Do you think I should invite the entire class? BETTY

If you are having a class party, by all means have all the members. If you are having a party independent of the school, then invite the ones in the class who are friends of yours and any other friends from other classes or schools.

DATE FOR THE GAME PRESENTS A PROBLEM

Dear Dixie:

For the past four years I have been taking a certain girl to the Tech-Georgia game. I was not in love with her, I just enjoyed being with her. During the past summer I met a girl who measures up to everything I ever wanted in a girl and I am wild about her. So far I have taken her to the games played this fall. And now here comes the trouble. What must I do about the Tech-Georgia game? I have been seeing the first girl several times, for I like her and have fun with her, but I want to take the second girl to the game. What can I do? I do not want to make her mad and I think she is expecting me to take her.

FOOTBALL DATE.

Unless you have mentioned the game to the first girl, I do not think you are obligated to take her. What you have done the past four years has nothing to do with your actions this year. Of course, you are on the spot in a way, for I know she expects you to ask her for the date. The only thing that you can do is to avoid mentioning football when you are with her and in that way an embarrassing situation may be prevented. If I were you I would not worry too much, for if the first girl has a chance to make a date for the game I think she will. Dates for the game are usually made far in advance.

MY DAY Cleveland Sponsors A 'Good Deed Day'

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

NEW YORK CITY, Friday.—Yesterday afternoon, I received the members of the National Council of Negro Women. Last year, like so many other organizations, they held one session of their convention in the White House. This year, however, they were 700 strong. Since the East room of the White House does not seat more than between 300 and 400, I attended their session in the Labor Department auditorium.

There I heard most interesting reports on different phases of their work, after which they were all received at the White House. Two of their artists, a young singer, Miss Carol Brice, and a violinist, Mr. Louis Vaughn Jones, from Howard University, entertained us.

This is the third organization that I have entertained this year, and it seems to me a very satisfactory way to get an idea of the work they are doing. The paper tells me that the women's organizations, at least, are being asked to choose other cities for their conventions and meetings because of the congestion here.

I can quite understand that this is perhaps necessary from the point of view of housing, but from the point of view of keeping in touch with what the organizations are doing, I shall regret it very much.

Twenty-one years ago in Cleveland, Ohio, they established a day which comes around again on Saturday, the 18th of October, for observance. There are people from coast to coast who look upon this as the day in the year when they must "do a good deed, say a kind word, remember the forgotten."

This year they are emphasizing that everyone should "send a remembrance to the boys in the armed forces." I think the idea is a good one and hope it will spread, though I hardly think it need be restricted to one day in the year.

So many people have sent me birthday greetings this year that I am afraid they never will receive personal acknowledgments. I want to take this opportunity to tell them how much I appreciate their kindness.

I told you yesterday about my post cards, and I must share another one with you. My anonymous correspondent desires to know if I still believe in free speech, or "think it is outmoded like our form of government."

Let me say that I do not think our form of government is outmoded, and, so long as that is true, I must also believe in free speech, free assembly and freedom of religion. Believing in these things, I must at all times try to make them a reality for everyone who is a citizen of this country.

Jobs Now Look for the Man In U. S. Defense Program

Job looking for man is still news to a lot of us . . . but it's a daily story in America's huge defense program. Every effort is being made to find trained men or to train men in needed skills.

Are you an experienced worker in metal crafts, shipbuilding or aircraft? That's where the need is greatest. But in many places defense work has spurred allied industries—clothing manufacture, railroads, sawmills.

If you haven't the skills needed, the government or private industry may teach you. Free courses are given in such subjects as electrical trades, radio communication, foundry work. Of if you've had some experience you can take a "brush-up course."

Many manufacturers operate training schools, from which you go onto the firm's payroll. Or you may sign up as an apprentice.

Perhaps you've had a yen for the sea. The United States Maritime Commission pays boys while training them to become ship's officers.

Never have there been more free employment agencies to find you jobs! Women, older people, even the handicapped may be placed.

Our 40-page booklet, "How to Get a Defense Job," tells of 300 types of workers needed. Explains how and where to get training, where to register for jobs. Lists addresses of 1,383 state employment services.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, "HOW TO GET A DEFENSE JOB," to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Sufficient Moisture in Air Helps To Ward Off Colds

By Dr. William Brady.

Most people are so fixed in their obsessions about cold, drafts, dampness and change of weather that I seldom interpose the faintest objection when they casually explain how they got that cold—that they call it, of course, but on the other hand, not that I'll use their name for it, either.

I have to endure an excess of such talk after the coldest of days have come, the driest of the year, when mucous membranes are subject to the vicissitudes of a Sahara-like climate as well as the ordinary year-round insults, and with such (chronic bronchitis), chronic sinusitis, chronic rhinitis ("catarrh") and the cr (common respiratory infections) get in their most telling licks, and the dumb-bell or wiesack victims take it all with saurian resignation as the inevitable effect of the season and weather.

Outdoor air in winter at a temperature of zero and a relative humidity of 50 per cent when heated to 70 degrees F. will have a relative humidity of only 3 per cent, which is drier than the driest climate known.

Every one knows that the excessively dry air in a heated house or building of respective type (heating) causes woodwork to shrink or fall apart, bindings of books to crack, etc., yet few have any concern about the effects of the desert aridity of the artificially heated atmosphere on mucous membranes, skin, temper and health. Of the few who have learned that the artificially warmed air indoors requires the addition of moisture, the ideal for no definite idea of the amount of moisture (water vapor) the heated air requires daily, and hence they readily believe any gadget that purports to add moisture is sufficient—just as a good many half-informed folk readily believe anything that purports to contain vitamins is sufficient to take care of the everyday requirements in that field.

Evaporation of a few quarts of water from some gadget is scarcely worth thinking about. In order to maintain the humidity at anywhere near the comfort zone (which is the ideal for physical efficiency and health and temperance as well) it is necessary to evaporate several gallons of water daily in an eight-room house or apartment kept at a temperature of not above 68 degrees F.

In order to comprehend how beneficial a fair relative humidity is, the householder must learn by experience—that is, try out the effect of such air-conditioning for a few months or for the winter season, and learn for himself its many benefits—not the least of which is the fuel saving it makes possible. On request, if you inclose stamped envelope bearing your address, I'll mail a monograph on humidification which gives practical suggestions.

Use Your Apron To Flatter Your Figure

By Lillian Mae.

A smart kitchen deserves a smart new apron to match its smart new schedule. In Pattern 4803, Lillian Mae gives you a choice of several styles, all made with a nonslip ladder back and a slimming waistband that ties in the back. One version has a V neck and shoulder straps attached to the bodice in front, which may be outlined with ricrac like the matching pockets. In the other—a dainty tea apron—the bodice is cut in one with the shoulder straps and prettily scalloped like the dipping hem and the pockets. Why not add the lighthearted bows and narrow lace? A third variation (B) is shown.

Pattern 4803 is available in sizes small (32-34), medium (36-38) and large (40-42). Small size, view A, takes 2 3/8 yards 35-inch fabric; view B, 2 1/2 yards 35-inch fabric; and view V, 1 7/8 yards 35-inch fabric and 8 yards lace edging.

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

Diet Experts Have Live-Wire Organization

By Ida Jean Kain.

The American Dietetic Association, which is holding its annual convention in St. Louis this week, was started 24 years ago in response to a food emergency. When one of the youngsters just recently out of school heard that some of the dietitians had distinguished themselves in the last World War, she spoke up and said, "Oh, really? Are they still alive?"

Are they? Why the association probably aggregates the largest group of live wires in the country. They can outwork any other organization I have ever been associated with. And they are tackling one of the hardest jobs connected with civilian defense—that of making the science of nutrition work out for our 34,000,000 families.

To do this, it has been necessary to give extra emphasis to organization. There is now a national committee on general preparedness for defense, with Lenna Frances Cooper, of Montefiore Hospital, New York city, as the chairman. State and local defense committees have also been organized. These local units all over the country were working with the existing social agencies, health departments, the American Red Cross, home economics departments of schools and colleges, and county extension workers. All of these are eager to help the homemaker with her nutrition problems. If your club would like a nutrition speaker you can arrange for one by getting in touch with your local health association.

Many of the dietitians are shouldering national responsibilities. Mary I. Barber, president of the association, is food expert and consultant to the War Department in Washington. It is her job to help plan the emergency and field rationing.

Pattern 7129. Take pride in your table! Set it with these lovely fillet crocheted doilies that you've made yourself! A nifty one of the three sizes will make practical and most acceptable Xmas gifts. Pattern 7129 contains instructions and charts for making crocheted doilies; illustrations of the materials needed.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in coin to Household Arts Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Be sure to write plainly your tions for the Army so that they will be adequate in every respect. Dr. Helen S. Mitchell, research professor of nutrition at the Massachusetts State College, is acting as director of nutrition for Paul V. McNutt, co-ordinator of health, welfare and related activities.

Another distinguished dietitian is Eloise Davison, assistant director of national defense activities, under Eleanor Roosevelt. Miss Davison tells me that the women's defense program is rapidly shaping up and that before long every community will have its volunteer corps. Registration for the corps will make available for an emergency a huge army of women, all doing the work for which they are especially fitted.

Miss Watson Wed To Mr. Anderson

The marriage of Miss Eleanor Watson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Asbury Watson, to Leslie G. Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Furman F. Anderson, of Atlanta, was solemnized recently at the home of the bride on St. Charles avenue. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Smith, pastor of Park Avenue Baptist church.

Mrs. Eugene E. Dunne, only sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and wore a gown of ice blue slipper satin. She carried pink roses and swansonia.

Jess Gordon Benefield was best man.

The bride wore a gown of heavy white tulle, the gored skirt of which was trimmed with a double ruffle around the hemline. She carried a white prayer book showered with gardenias and streamers of white satin ribbon, and in her hair she wore a cluster of gardenias.

The bride's mother wore a becoming model of defense blue jersey. The mother of the groom wore black crepe trimmed in white.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a small reception for the relatives and friends present.

During the afternoon, the bridal pair left for a wedding trip through the southeastern part of the country. The bride traveled in a two-piece costume suit of blue wool, the jacket of which was trimmed in red fox. Her accessories were of blue, and she wore gardenias.

Wesleyan Group 5.

Miss Jacqueline Howard, of Decatur, was hostess to Wesleyan Alumnae Group 5 recently at the East Lake Country Club. Mrs. Ransom L. Eurtis, chairman, presented Mrs. W. T. Ayres, who is a member of the DeKalb County Board of American Women's Volunteer Service.

Mrs. Harold C. McKenzie, national president of the Wesleyan Alumnae, talked on the subject of China relief. The group also had as a special guest Mrs. Lowry Sims.

Purely Personal Chatter About Atlanta Debutantes

(Editor's Note: This is the fifth of the second annual series of thumbnail sketches of Atlanta debutantes to be featured in Sally Forth's column every Monday. The sketches will present intimate glimpses into the lives of the belles whose names will make social history during this winter.)

By SALLY FORTH.

...ART is Virginia Richardson's chief interest and she spends every day until after 4 o'clock studying art at the High Museum. The brunet and charming debutante daughter of the Leaver Richardsons is exceptionally gifted in this direction, and the dream of her life is to be a high-class fashion illustrator. She adores classical music and never misses a performance of Puccini's tuneful "La Boheme."

Virginia likes white evening gowns best of all and is very fond of wearing broad-brimmed hats. She likes her breakfast served in bed on the days she does not take an art lesson, because she can well afford to be lazy on those days. Roses are her favorite flowers, and, according to Virginia, shrimp is the most delectable food in the world. She abhors okra and affected people are her pet phobia.

Virginia uses a medium shade of red on her fingernails and tennis and badminton are her chosen outdoor sports. She is tall and quite slender, is very stylish, and has a great deal of animation. Virginia was educated at Sophie Newcomb College in New Orleans.

Her parents will introduce their attractive daughter to their friends at a tea given on November 12, at their Montclair drive residence. Her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, and her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Robert D. McLane, of Waco, Texas, will receive with the debutante and Mr. and Mrs. Richardson.

...THE presence of Betty Bosworth, the attractive roommate of Sallie Cobb Johnson, will add luster to the debutante coterie at the Halloween ball at the Driving Club. Betty and Sallie Cobb attended the Finch school in New York city, and became the best of friends while attending this well-known school. Betty arrives in Atlanta on October 28, and she will be escorted to the ball by two of Atlanta's beaux-ideals, their names to be made known at a later date. Here's hoping that nothing will interfere with her coming here to visit Sallie Cobb and attend the ball.

Hopkins-Welch Rites Take Place

Miss Edith Marie Hopkins became the lovely bride of Lewis A. Welch Jr. at a ceremony taking place yesterday afternoon at Sylvan Hills Baptist church at 5 o'clock. Rev. W. H. Reed read the marriage service.

A musical program was presented by Miss Aida Tedder De Bray, pianist, and Mrs. N. G. Baggett, soloist. Candelabra, which held lighted white tapers and tall baskets filled with white gladioli and Easter lilies, were posed against an enbankment of palms and ferns.

The usher-groomsman were Gray H. Ridgeway and Pascal B. Hopkins, the bride's brother. Serving as best man was Russell V. Crawford Jr.

Miss Louise Duncan, the maid of honor, wore an orchid tulle gown and carried a colonial bouquet of mixed blossoms. The bridesmaids were Mrs. M. A. Yarbrough, who wore aquamarine tulle, and Miss Gloria Welch, gowned in shell pink tulle. They carried colonial bouquets.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, Carlos Hopkins, was beautifully gowned in a white organza posed over white satin, which featured a sweetheart neckline and leg-omutton sleeves. Her veil of illusion tulle was caught to a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a white Bible showered with lavender orchids.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Hopkins entertained at a reception at their home on Sylvan road following the ceremony. Mrs. William C. Martin Jr. kept the bride's book, and Misses Dorothy Estes and Eloise Roberts assisted in entertaining.

At the conclusion of a wedding trip, Mr. Welch and his bride will reside here.

...THE presence of Betty Bosworth, the attractive roommate of Sallie Cobb Johnson, will add luster to the debutante coterie at the Halloween ball at the Driving Club. Betty and Sallie Cobb attended the Finch school in New York city, and became the best of friends while attending this well-known school. Betty arrives in Atlanta on October 28, and she will be escorted to the ball by two of Atlanta's beaux-ideals, their names to be made known at a later date. Here's hoping that nothing will interfere with her coming here to visit Sallie Cobb and attend the ball.

Love Will Come Again

Pat Hastings Comes From Virginia; Finds a Very Humb'le Cherry

By Alma Sioux Scarberry.

SYNOPSIS. April and Kent Hillier come to a parting of the ways after six years of married life. They are very much in love but Kent, who is known to April and his friends, refuses to settle down and go to work. When most of his tidy fortune has been dissipated, he thinks it is all right for April to bolster his income by giving voice lessons in the Hillier-Lorraine School of Music and Dancing which she has formed with her life-long friend and companion, Gay. Kent, her 19-year-old sister, has left home to find Hill waiting for her at the airport. He has been drinking and is angry at seeing April with Kent. After a brief exchange with April, Hill leaves in a huff. Hill becomes engaged to a wealthy and notorious divorcee, Drusilla Bayne. During April's absence in Reno, Cherry, her 18-year-old sister, has left college, broken her engagement with Pat Hastings, a young lawyer, and come to live with April. Cherry is very much upset by April's divorce and is determined to be a model and "solid digger." She finds employment as a model and starts going around with a very fast crowd. Pat comes to visit Cherry and attempts to dissuade her, but she is unable to shake the young girl's stubborn determination. She arranges a radio audition for April and April, who is a radio singer, goes to the audition and becomes April Lind on the radio. Curt attends the premiere and proposes to April on the way home. She permits him to kiss her but declines his proposal. She tells him she had accepted his invitation for a cocktail together. She chides him for his neglect of their son since his divorce and gets angry. In his anger he tells her that Curt owns the company which is sponsoring her radio program. Gay confirms Curt's ownership of the company and admits that he had suggested the audition for April. Cherry goes to a penthouse party with socially prominent Brett Roberts, who has been escorting her around town.

"How do you think she'll feel about my coming?" Pat asked uncomfortably. "Maybe she'll just hop all over me for interfering." "I don't think so," Gay shook her head. "I rather believe this experience has taken a little of the wind out of Miss Cherry's sails. She's a pretty subdued girl. Do you know, Pat, this is an awful thing to say maybe, but I think Cherry needed. Something to wake her up before she makes a mess out of her life."

Pat said thoughtfully: "You might be right, if it has any permanent effect on her." "Cherry is just a fresh brat," Gay told him. "She's been showing off. For one thing she's always been told she was beautiful. She's too conceited about her looks, and too sure of herself. But underneath it all, Cherry has some very good qualities."

"She certainly has," Pat agreed. "She never has had me fooled with her high jinks. I know her too well."

Pat went to the dinette to eat and Gay hurried back into the bedroom to see about Cherry. In a little while she roused, opening her eyes with a little moan.

Gay patted her hand. "I'm here, darling. Would you like a nice drink of ice water?" "I guess so," Cherry said weakly. "Is April back yet?"

"She will be soon," Gay raised her head and held the glass to her feverish lips. "There's somebody here to see you from home. He's having a bite to eat now."

"Is it—yes, it is Pat?" "Who else would it be?" Gay smoothed back her hair. "He has been driving ever since he heard you were in trouble. But he's a little worried for fear you won't want to see him. You will be nice to him, won't you, Cherry?"

Tears squeezed through Cherry's closed eyes and she nodded without speaking. "I'll tell him just as soon as he's through eating," Gay smiled, relieved. "He hasn't had a bite to eat all day. Poor darling." Gay put a fresh bed jacket on Cherry and bathed her face and hands and combed her golden hair. Her face was chalk white against the pillow, and her eyes rimmed with dark circles. But she was very beautiful as Pat stood looking down at her a few minutes later.

"Cherry," he said softly, "it's—Pat, honey. How do you feel?" Cherry opened her pensive eyes, and they filled with quick tears. "Okay," she whispered.

Pat sat down beside her, taking her hand. "Do you mind if I sit here a little while?" he asked shakily. "If you don't want me I'll go."

Cherry said with a little sob: "Don't go. Please don't." Pat reached over and smoothed the hair back from her hot head and said gently:

"You bet I won't go, Sugar." He felt a weak pressure on his hand as Cherry hooked her little fingers around his large brown ones, and his heart thumped in his breast as he realized what she was trying to tell him. She hadn't meant what she had said about his staying out of her life and minding his own business. She was glad he was there beside her, and she needed him.

After a long silence Cherry opened her eyes and looked at Pat. "I can never hold my head up again. All the terrible things the papers are saying about me—"

Pat smiled as naturally as he could and exclaimed: "The papers! What difference do they make with me tomorrow they'll have someone else on the spot and they'll forget all about what has happened to you. What do you care about the scandal sheets?"

Cherry flowed down Cherry's white cheeks. "B—but the people back home. They'll never forget it. I could never go back to Salem again, never."

Pat leaned over and put his face to hers and said brokenly: "You can go with me, sweetheart. And nobody will dare say anything about you. We'll go back and face it together, if you'll go with me. Will you, Cherry? I love you so."

Cherry whispered heart-brokenly: "I can't Pat. I'd ruin your career. Nobody will ever have any respect for me at home again. I've been—such a fool. B—but I haven't really done anything bad, Pat. Not really."

"Of course you haven't," Pat put his lips to her cheek tenderly. "You've just been blown off a little steam. I've always understood."

Cherry choked childishly: "You're too good to me, Pat. You deserve somebody a lot nicer than I am. I can't ruin your life. I won't."

"Do you love me—just a little bit?" Pat held his breath for her answer. Cherry turned her head and found his lips, and when she had kissed him tenderly she whispered:

"I do love you—terribly." But Cherry remained steadfast in her determination not to go back to Virginia and marry Pat Hastings, even after she was able to be up and around the house. She would not ruin his career. It was then that Curt De Witt, taking matters into his own hands, offered Pat a job as an attorney with Sherlock Steel.

That night, out of gratitude, and because she was so very fond of him, April told Curt she would be his wife.

Pat would not have accepted Curt De Witt's offer to go to work for Sherlock Steel, if he had not felt it was the only way he could remain in New York to be near Cherry. His pride told him the steel head only gave him the opportunity for April's sake. Curt knew how worried April was about her younger sister.

Then too, Pat had hoped to follow in his father's footsteps in Virginia and perhaps go into politics when he was a little older and more experienced. But no sacrifice was too great when he could be with Cherry. She was still very nervous, and given to nightmares in which she was the terror-stricken re-enacted, but she was kind and gentle with Pat and everyone around her, and apparently wanted to see nothing of the outside world. She would never go back to Georgetown, she declared stoutly.

Lola came out to see her quite frequently, bringing messages from the old crowd, but never urging her to go back to modeling. Lola was fond of Pat and thought Cherry would be much better off married and settled down with him. Si Winters sent flowers every day with notes telling Cherry he hoped she would soon be well.

Lola told Cherry he had shut himself off from his friends almost completely since the attempted suicide of Patsy Lloyd and it was beginning to look as though they wouldn't enjoy any more of his fabulous parties. He hadn't been seen with Fifi Du Bois, or any of his other girl friends since that evening. Patsy had gone back to her home in Pennsylvania after leaving the hospital.

Just before Thanksgiving Curt brought his daughter Penny for Sunday dinner to the apartment in Douglass and April met her for the first time. She was a lanky 12-year-old with black pig tails and braces on her teeth. But she had a shy smile that won friends instantly.

Curt had thought it best for April to meet and know Penny before they told the child she was to have a stepmother. She was such a sensitive little girl that he was not certain how she would take the idea of April and Kenny being taken into the family circle.

Kenny was delighted to have someone to entertain, and almost immediately after Penny had met April, Gay, Cherry, Pat and Hyacinthe he took her off to the nursery to show his toys.

"Penny adored younger children and soon they were lost in play. When April and Curt looked in a little later Kenny was curled beside Penny in a big chair and she was reading "The Story of a Little Duck" to him.

"They seem to be hitting it off fine," Curt smiled, giving April a quick kiss, as they walked down the hall. "They'll make a nice family, don't you think?"

"Lovely," April said. "Penny is such an appealing little darling. I do hope she will love me. How can she help it?" Curt gave April another quick kiss. "Of course she'll love you, darling!"

They sat down in April's room to talk. Curt said gravely: "I've been thinking I'd like to adopt Kenny as my son, if we can get it fixed up. I'd like him to share equally with Penny in my estate. I don't want him to feel left out of things. What do you think about it, dear?"

It looks like that European war is going to last for second helpings.

If it keeps up another year they will have to put zippers on strait-jackets because we will all be as nutty as Halloween.

The strangest thing about the lineup is the way they change sides. France started fighting Germany and is now their ally. Russia started as Germany's pal and is now fighting 'em.

We cheered little Finland when it paid its debt and now we are trying to put 'em out of business. They say politics makes strange bedfellows but that's better than walking the floor with international diplomacy.

Nazi Preparation For Attack on Italy Seen by Long

DETROIT, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Breckinridge Long, assistant secretary of state, asserted today that Germany had asked Italy to send 1,000,000 soldiers into Russia, France and Yugoslavia, and suggested that if this were done the Nazis would then launch an attack on Italy itself.

"The examples of Belgium and Holland, of Norway, of Poland, of Rumania—in short of the recent experiences of Europe—as witnessed by the world—give plenty of ground for fear by the Italian people," he declared, "that if they send their soldiers away they bare their breasts to an attack from so-called 'friends and allies' whose legions have carried out at home, as well as abroad, campaigns of terror and bloodshed, of rapine and slavery—campaigns which have been followed by misery and which have horrified all respectable peoples."

Long addressed a gathering of 125 Italian-American societies. His address was broadcast by short-wave stations beamed for Europe.

NBC sent Italian, Spanish and Portuguese translations of the speech by short wave to Europe in separate 15-minute rebroadcasts.

At the outset of his remarks, Long said that Italy had been the cradle of civilization of the guardian of Christianity and religion.

"It is hard to understand," he continued, "how Italy, with such a long history in the preservation of civilization, could now join with a monstrous attack upon the very civilization Italy had been protecting for 2,000 years and more. It is hard to believe the Italian people could co-operate with a Nazi government which is trying to destroy the very structure Italy had nurtured."

He went on to say that from earliest times a cardinal point of Italian foreign policy had been to maintain a buffer state between herself and Germany, but that the Nazis now were sitting at Brenner Pass "right on the doorstep of the Italians."

Carolina Corps Prepare for New Training

Program Will See One Full Group Pitted Against Another.

CAMDEN, S. C., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Commanding officers of the First and Second Corps of the First Army, now engaged in two months of maneuvers, prepared today for the next phase of their training program in which one full corps will be matched against another for the first time in simulated warfare over the rolling hills of the Carolinas.

The First Corps, commanded by Major General Charles F. Thompson, will be ranged against the Second Corps of Major General Karl Truesdell's Sixth Corps, made up of the 6th and 28th Divisions, which occupy itself with a problem in its own area.

Headquarters decided not to give out any advance publicity about the program of the First vs. Second Corps workout, taking the position that in actual war the opposing forces would not have any information about the plan of their respective foes.

However, it appeared that the First Corps, made up of the 8th, 9th and 30th Divisions, with bivouacs around Kershaw, would face the Second Corps, composed of the 28th, 29th and 44th Divisions, all National Guard outfits, stationed in the Wadesboro, N. C., region, in some tactical problem.

The Sixth Corps, complete for the first time during the current maneuvers with the arrival last week of the First Division from Fort Devens, Mass., was ordered to take part in a four-day maneuver involving a forced crossing of the Pee Dee river with pontoon boats, assault boats and ferries.

The First Division was to start from its base near Camden, N. C., and the 28th from a point south of the Norman, N. C., and move to the west in the execution of the problem.

"People don't have time to read advertising," a busy clubwoman tells me. "This is a busy age, and the modern woman skims through her newspaper, hitting the high spots."

She has no proof for her statement, of course—and the Bureau of Advertising, an affiliate of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, has proof that more people are reading more advertising in their newspapers today than ever before.

Through scientific studies of newspaper readership, the Bureau of Advertising has learned that 98 per cent of the women who read newspapers read something on the front page. And what percentage of women read some advertising? Ninety-five per cent.

In over half of the newspapers surveyed, the best read advertisement was read by more people than the best read news story.

There's a perfectly logical reason for it, of course. The best read advertisement in a newspaper is best read because it offers something that can have a direct effect on the life of the newspaper reader. A pair of shoes that will make your feet more comfortable without any sacrifice in footwear style means more to you, directly and immediately, than the world-shaking Russo-German struggle.

Advertising lets you know about merchandise and services that are necessary for your happiness. Because more people are reading newspapers today than at any time during the last 20 years, merchants find newspaper advertising the most economical and efficient way to tell you about the things they think you will want and need. Because you are interested in maintaining and improving your standard of living, you read with genuine interest what the advertisements have to say.

Any person who seeks to prevent the purchase of milk at a low platform cash and carry price is undermining the standard of living of a community," Mrs. W. L. Fleisher Jr., chairman of the Atlanta Consumers' Council, said yesterday in replying to Charles G. Duncan, director of the Georgia Milk Control Board, who has threatened to make cases against consumers buying milk in wholesale lots.

Her statement follows: "We cannot see how the director of the Milk Control Board can imply that Atlanta mothers and fathers are violating the law when they inconvenience themselves to meet the rising cost of living."

"Any person who seeks to prevent the purchase of milk at a low platform cash and carry price is undermining the standards of living of this community. Milk is a vital food and it is no wonder that parents seek to save 5 cents a quart in order to continue to feed their children proper diets. Many families cannot afford to pay 16 cents or 15 cents for a quart of milk."

"It is a great inconvenience to buy 12 quarts of milk, carry them home and distribute them to the neighbors. By doing this, each family pays $1.32 every 12th day when it is their turn to call for the milk. It is not sold to each member of the 'club' for cash."

"The new order by the Milk Control Board provides for a cash and carry platform price to any purchaser. The whole point of these efforts on the part of Atlanta parents is to continue to supply their tables with fluid milk that is fresh."

F. D. R. To Get Aircraft Plant Labor Dispute

CIO Union Votes Strike at Plane Factories in New York.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The Defense Mediation Board announced tonight that it was turning over to President Roosevelt the labor dispute at Air Associates, Inc., of Bendix, N. J., a key plant in the nation's aircraft industry, which it had been striving to settle since July.

The announcement immediately stirred conjecture that the government might take over the plant, which has $5,000,000 of vital defense contracts, most of them for parts to be supplied to virtually all of the country's leading airplane manufacturers.

The principal point at issue involves the immediate reinstatement to their jobs members of the CIO United Automobile Workers' Union who charge that they were locked out. Air Associates and the union also have been at odds on other controversies.

Meanwhile, in Buffalo, N. Y., the CIO United Automobile Workers' Union voted in favor of a strike at Bell Aircraft Corporation's two warplane plants in Buffalo and Niagara Falls, but decided to withhold action "until all possible means of arbitration have been exhausted."

10,500 Employed. The company, employing 10,500 at the two plants, produces the speedy, cannon-carrying Airacobra (P-39), and has a backlog of more than $150,000,000 in orders for the United States and British governments.

The UAW-CIO called for the strike vote last Friday, because, Leo Lamotte, CIO official, said, wage negotiations had reached a stalemate.

Company officials said they had no comment to make at the present time.

Lamotte said the union had been negotiating for five weeks on demands for a 20-cent hourly general wage increase, a boost in the minimum starting wage from 50 to 75 cents hourly, a union shop and a checkoff, whereby union dues would be deducted from pay checks.

Pay Raise Offered. He revealed the company has offered a 5-cent general raise and a 10-cent increase on the minimum starting wage.

In Seattle, more than 600 AFL welders voted to affiliate with the United Welders and Burners, an independent union, after they had been told that the Office of Production Management would grant them recognition at a Washington, D. C., hearing next week.

Simultaneously, they approved a decision of 177 welders to return to work tomorrow at the Lake Washington shipyards, where their walkout Friday halted construction of five Naval seaplane tenders.

Consumers Hit Duncan's Stand On 'Milk Clubs'

Nazi Fliers Try To 'Beat Dutch' By Hiding Propellers at Night

LONDON, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Dutch sources said today that German airmen commanders in the Netherlands are having to take the propellers off of their isolated planes at night and place them under heavy guard to keep Dutchmen from seizing them to escape to England.

Newspapers reported three more Dutchmen had just arrived in England in a stolen seaplane. Netherlands sources recently announced that other parties of Dutchmen had arrived in two stolen German land planes.

The seaplane came down in three tremendous leaps, smashing one of the floats in its landing, the newspapers said. The pilot explained he had never flown a seaplane before.

When British coastal batteries opened fire on the plane its occupants leaned out waving handkerchiefs and the Netherlands flag until the firing ceased, it was said. They said they had taken off at night amid a hail of gunfire from German guards.

Water Follies Of 1941 Opens Here Tonight

Buster Crabbe Is Feature Performer of Talented Stars.

Great numbers—running into the millions—of people thrilled to the performances of the Aquadonians at both New York and San Francisco World Fairs.

Tonight, Water Follies of 1941, the road show replica of those two fair spectacles, will begin a run of four nights and one matinee at the municipal auditorium.

Buster Crabbe, Olympic champion, movie star and featured performer of Billy Rose's Aquadonians, is the leading member of the cast.

Trick Divers, Comedians. With the large troupe of trick divers and comedians from the two world's fairs travels the pool itself, a miracle of modern construction, valued at $15,000. Largest portable pool in the world, the tank measures 92 feet in length and 45 in width, is seven feet deep and contains 80,000 gallons of water.

The show is said to operate with the precision and smoothness of a big-time Broadway musical. In the same way that Sonja Henie and those great comedians of the Ice Follies, Eddie Shipstead and Oscar Johnson, combined ice skaters into theatrical entertainment, Producer Sam Snyder gathered around him the greatest swimmers and divers in the world and routinized them as an entertainment unit.

One of the highlights of the show is the original ballet from Rose's Aquadonians, a beautiful number featuring 20 pretty mermaids, all lovely and shapely, who execute trick formations of the most daring type to the rhythm of music.

First Appearance in South. Water Follies is making its first appearance in the south. The show has received unusual press all over the world. It lasts approximately three times as long as did the World's Fair Aquadonians, which ran 40 minutes, and offers more acts.

There are clowns galore and the cast includes some of the nation's top divers, including Charlie Diehl, Jimmy Rice, Cornelia Gilissen, Joe Seymour, Larry Griswold, great clown, and the red-headed Hopkins sisters, who are tops in their line.

The first splash will take place at 8:30. No seats are available on the first floor, which is taken up by the pool and its tropical setting.

Duke, Duchess Pay Surprise Visit to Capitol

Reception Is Held for Congressmen and Their Wives.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor paid a visit to the capitol today and held a reception in the rotunda for a dozen or so congressmen and their wives who had been hastily mobilized by telephone.

Red Cross workers, who have a booth in the capitol, had expected the couple to call last Friday and had laid in roses and tea for the occasion but the Duke and Duchess did not show up.

The visit, intended to call attention to the Red Cross drive, was finally arranged today when the Windsors returned from a visit with friends in Warrenton, Va., and before they were entrained for New York.

A bouquet of 48 roses, representing the 48 states, was presented to the Duchess by Mrs. Nat Patton, wife of the Texas representative. And Patton himself saluted them both as "cousins," a salutation he also had bestowed on the duke's brother, King George VI, when the King and Queen visited here.

Representative Tenerowicz, Democrat, Michigan; Representative Johnson, Democrat, Oklahoma; Mrs. Johnson and Miss Mabel Boardman, of the Red Cross, participated in the welcoming ceremony.

Others in the reception line included Senators Aiken, Republican, Vermont; Thomas, Democrat, Idaho, and Hatch, Democrat, New Mexico, and Representatives Fulmer, Democrat, South Carolina; Murdock, Democrat, Arizona; Rankin, Democrat, Mississippi; and Sparkman, Democrat, Alabama, with the wives of some of them.

Most of the population and all the large cities of Argentina are within the central or pampa region.

Roosevelt Gets Harriman's Report on Reds

Arranges Personal Talk With Mission Head Tomorrow.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Oct. 19.—(AP)—President Roosevelt received a second-hand report today from W. Averell Harriman, head of the American mission on aid to Russia, and arranged a personal conference with him in Washington Tuesday.

Presumably, aides said, Mr. Roosevelt also will confer in the capital Tuesday with John Biggers, his "trouble shooter" in London, who took over Harriman's old job of expediting the flow of lease-lend supplies at the British end.

Harry L. Hopkins, supervisor of lease-lend affairs for the chief executive, a guest at the Roosevelt estate, met Harriman late yesterday at the latter's home at Arden, N. Y. Hopkins spent the night there and reported back to Mr. Roosevelt today.

The chief executive already has been advised of action taken and commitments made in an effort to send a stream of supplies and weapons to Red armies.

From the Roosevelt-Harriman parley Tuesday, some individuals suggested there might develop a definite decision on whether to extend lease-lend aid to Russia.
